BATTLE FIRE IN NAVY YARD

STATE LIBRARY OF MASSACHUSETTS

MAR 20 1941

STATE ARCHIVES BOSTON

Two alarms were sounded for a fire in the navy yard in Charlestown this afternoon. The blaze started in a tunnel adjacent to building No. 139, which houses the main cable supplying all power and electricity throughout the yard.

Officials said shortly after the alarm was sounded that the flames had spread to the navy yard foundry, which is known as building No. 105. Heavy black smoke pouring from the yard and settling over the entire district attracted throngs of motorists and civilians.

All Charlestown fire fighting apparatus raced to the scene to supplement the navy's own fire engines. The second alarm was sounded only a few minutes after the first.

A Boston police cruising car on the scene was ordered by navy officials not to broadcast a report of progress of the fire to police headquarters. The police radio went silent after officers told how the blaze had started in the tunnel and that smoke was pouring out near Pier 6.

HULL BLASTED WORST RAID

HULL, England, March 19 (AP)—German bombers showered incendiaries and high explosives on Hull last night and early today in a fierce continuation of nocturnal blows at Britain's provincial cities.

This shipping and factory city of 300,000 counted great numbers of dead in the wake of the assault, the worst of many directed against it.

The raiders roared over Hull in steady waves, using the same tactics that cost a thousand lives in the Liverpool and the Glasgow regions last week.

Many residents were caught in their homes. Residential damage was severe.

Rescue parties were busy digging out dead and injured when the all-clear sounded shortly before dawn. One high explosive wrecked a shelter in which the only survivor was a 12-month-old baby.

Ambulances jolted through narrow streets strewn with wreckage. Municipal authorities opened six community centers to feed and shelter the homeless.

The raid began with dropping of a few bombs in the early evening. Then came a lull of three hours. The attack's full fury struck shortly after midnight, when bombs rained down with such intensity it seemed the entire city would be blasted apart. This continued several hours without a lull.

Rescuers used all the tools they had and when there were no more for volunteers who swarmed to the blasted sections many fell to digging into the debris with their bare hands.

In a nearby town, hundreds of fire bombs were dropped, but damage there was not extensive.

Nuns put out incendiaries sprinkled on a convent. One cluster of fire bombs seared through a theatrium roof to the stage a few moments after the audience had left.

RAF Planes Blast Kiel, Wilhelmshaven

By JAMES E. BROWN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, March 19 (INS)—Attacking in relay, RAF bombers blasted the northern German ports of Kiel and Wilhelmshaven during the night and also poured bombs on oil tanks at the Na-occupied Netherlands city of Rotterdam, the air ministry announced today.

An official announcement said the main weight of the RAF attack was delivered against docks and industrial targets at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven and against the oil supplies stored at Rotterdam.

"Fairly large" RAF bomber forces participated in the attacks, London sources revealed.

The British planes, attacking in waves, dropped their loads of high explosive and incendiary bombs on German shipyards and docks in assaults that lasted several hours.

Nazis Say Air Torpedoes Hit 2 British Warships

BERLIN, March 19 (AP)—German torpedo-launching planes damaged two heavy British war vessels in an attack on a strong naval squadron Sunday 25 miles off the Greek Island of Crete in the eastern Mediterranean, the Nazi high command announced today.

"Both vessels were struck, once each by an air torpedo," the daily war bulletin declared. Besides the two heavy units, the squadron was said to have included six cruisers and two or three destroyers. The high command made no mention of damage to these vessels.

Berlin first reported the attack Monday, without details. Dis-

CAPTAIN IN N. Y. TELLS HOW SUBS HIT 5 SHIPS IN CONVOY OF 38

NEW YORK, March 19 (INS)—Attacked twice in one day by Nazi U-boats the Holland-American liner Leerdam docked today with passengers praising the seamanship of Capt. Ary Kooy who brought his vessel safely through the sea raid in which five other convoyed vessels were struck.

Fate of the five torpedoed vessels was a mystery, even to Skipper Kooy who concentrated his efforts on worming his own way through the submarine-infested area with all possible speed.

The first attack on the fleet of 38 merchant ships convoyed by four destroyers including one of those turned over to Britain by the United States, occurred on March 8, about 1000 miles off the Irish coast and the second came later the same day.

TELLS OF RAID

Kooy described the raid in this fashion:

"We left Glasgow on March 8.

At 4:30 a. m., on March 6, I was on the bridge and noticed that my convoy leader, the S. S. DeHillan, had started to slow down.

"She was directly in front of the Leerdam and I had no reason for suspecting that she had been hit. In fact, I thought she had slowed down to clear ashes from her boilers.

"As we were under orders to maintain seaway, I continued at regular speed, deciding to pass her on the port side. As I was directly in line with the DeHillan, and no more than 50 yards away, a terrific explosion occurred.

I could see the DeHillan list. My own vessel was shaken from stem to stern. I could not stop—indeed, slowing up would have been fatal—so I called for full speed ahead.

HEARD LOUD BLAST

"Within a few minutes I heard another loud explosion to my stern and saw that the 15,000-ton Norwegian whaler The Targovik had started to settle fast.

"The destroyers, like excited terriers, began to circle the convoy, dropping depth bombs, as the remaining ships closed up ranks for safety.

"As we continued westward, the attack was resumed. Before nightfall two more ships in my convoy—the British tanker Athelbeach and the Dutch tanker Mydrecht—were hit by torpedoes."

The next day, the Dutch skipper said, the fifth ship was torpedoed, a British freighter named the Empire Atendant.

The 8815-ton Leerdam carried a crew of 56 and 19 passengers. The latter were all of the opinion that Kooy's handling of his ship probably saved them from torpedoing.

G. O. P. House Bloc In Last Ditch Fight To Slash Aid Total

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—A small opposition band of House Republicans, expressing belief that all-out British aid betokened war for the United States, decided on a last-ditch fight today to slash the big $7,000,000,000 lease-lend appropriation before a final vote sends the bill to the Senate.

Announcing this forlorn stand in the face of conceded overwhelming Administration strength, Rep. Lambertson (R.) of Kansas, charged that President Roosevelt was "enthused, . . . joyful almost to tears" at the possibility of becoming a war President of the United States.

This threat of determined resistance failed to arouse concern among the bill's supporters. As the hour for voting approached, leaders of both parties predicted that a tremendous majority would be rolled up for the bill appropriation to emphasize to the world that "we mean business."

Consideration of amendments was the first order of business for the day, and sponsors of the bill said their strategy would be to crush the first few major proposals with top-sided votes, thus hoping to discourage presentation of a series of others and thereby save time. The final roll-call was expected late in the day, but leaders were ready to force a night session, if necessary, to dispose of the measure.

WANTS CUT TO 5 BILLION

Lambertson, however, declared that he would ask the House to send the measure back to the appropriations committee with instructions to cut it to $5,000,000,000 if for no other reason than to demonstrate "that we dare do it."

Lambertson told the Chamber yesterday that the $7,000,000,000 fund request by President Roosevelt was the forerunner of others, and he gave it as his opinion that "it would aid me eventually 'sending our boys'."

"It is time for Congress, which represents the rank and file of people back home, to have never agreed to this war, who have been fooled, to do something about it," he continued.

"It was planned from the beginning not to have a declaration of war. We planned to imitate Japan on that score and not have any war . . .

"I say let us rise up on our hind legs and be American Congressmen again and vote for this recommendation" (to the committee).

Lyons, Mannos Fate In Hands of Jury

After a one-hour charge by Judge Harold P. Williams today in Middlesex Superior Court the jury was given the case of Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge and Paul Manno, Brookline contractor, charged with requesting and accepting bribes and with conspiracy.

SMITH COLLEGE GIRL GUARDED ON CAMPUS AFTER ATTACK ON DAD

Miss Ann Whittlesey, 13-year-old Smith College freshman, is to spend the rest of her college year under day and night police guard—or at least until her father's alleged attacker is captured—it was revealed today.

Disclosure came as the pretty brunette departed from a New York hotel for her home at Nyack, N. Y., with guards assigned for all her spring vacation from the college.

Fears for her life led to request for police protection right after her father, Percy W. Whittlesey, a founder of the Council of America, was shot six times by a German houseman for his work in aiding Britain and the allies.

Still sought is Walter G. Groebli, 25, a young German sympathizer, whom Whittlesey picked up on the road and gave a job only to be later attacked.

College authorities revealed that every protection—the same that secretly has been given her day and night for more than a month—will be afforded when she returns to complete the remainder of her college year.

Special Policeman Michael Shea of the Northampton force has been assigned to watch Miss Whittlesey.

After a brief visit to Nyack, it was reported the girl would make a flying trip to Florida where her father is recuperating from his wounds.

Whittlesey until recently was secretary to the fabulously rich Bernard—once known as "The Omnipotent"—to his followers in the cult of Tantrix.

Disclosure by the Smith College press board that a guard had been assigned for the girl came after she left to spend spring vacation at her home.

Miss Whittlesey, a freshman,

started her vacation one day in advance of the rest of the college, and it was only after she departed that the college authorities revealed that she had been under guard for the past 10 days.

The jurors retired at 11:15 a. m. to consider 45 counts against Lyons and 42 against Mannos of requesting and accepting bribes, as well as one count against both, charging that they conspired to accept bribes.

In his charge, Judge Williams explained to the jurors the law governing conspiracy and the law relating to bribery in its various forms.

JUDGE MAKES CHARGE

He told the jurors that each defendant must be judged by his own acts and declarations as shown by the testimony, but he explained that the acts and declarations of each might be considered against the other.

It is the contention of the defense, Judge Williams said, that Mannos was acting alone and received payments of fees from Cambridge city work as compensation for services he rendered.

On the other hand, the court pointed out, the government alleged that the defendants were acting in a joint enterprise whereby the mayor's approval of contracts were given in return for money.

Judge Williams emphasized that it was up to the jury to find the facts "coldly and dispassionately on the evidence."

BRADFORD AGREES

All final arguments in the case had been completed yesterday, government and defense counsel using up that entire day.

Lashing out even at his own witnesses, Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford declared that the Cambridge mayor had used his office for a "brazen shakedown" and that Mannos had served as "bagman."

Bradford termed as "disgraces to their professions" the architects and engineers who as government witnesses had testified to "kicking back" one third fees for contracts received.

Opening his argument, Bradford stated:

"Consider the law and the facts and what have we got?"

"We have a situation where one defendant says, 'I didn't do it,' and the other says, 'I did it, but it's nothing wrong.'"

"They ask you for a complete whitewash of one of the most brazen, cold-blooded shakedowns propositions ever encountered in your entire lives."

"OLD, OLD STORY"

"It is the old, old story of a politician who uses his office for a shakedown through a bagman."

"They objected to the word 'shakedown,' and liked the word 'commission.' The law has a word for it. It's 'bribe'—and bribery is a crime."

"It was a conspiracy that architects might be drawn into the net, not in the light of day but in secret."

"Let's take the Kimball transaction, a former mayor, State representative, an engineer for 40 years. He tells you a story that puts him definitely in the same class as the very man about whom he tells this story. He convicts himself as a bribe giver."

"Would he tell such a story if

Dutch Ship Sunk By Pacific Raider

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—Domei (Japanese news agency) broadcast today a press report that the Netherlands East Indies steamer Rantapadjang, 2542 tons, had been sunk by the German Pacific ocean raider Tokyo Maru. The dispatch said no passengers were aboard.

The Tokyo Maru is one of three raiders credited with sinking at least six ships in the South Pacific between Dec. 8 and 9.

HUSSEY CHILDREN DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE
Take Refuge at Home of Friend After Roxbury Fire

2-ALARM ROXBURY FIRE DRIVES 9 TO STREET

Nine persons, some of them clad only in night clothes, were driven to the freezing street today by a two-alarm fire in a Warren st., Roxbury, block which also jammed up Elevated bus traffic in and out of Dudley st. terminal.

The fire, starting in the basement of the block, sent heavy clouds of smoke rolling into the upper floors, and before it was checked had spread to an abandoned tenement building in the rear and fronting in Ziegler st.

George Staples of Walnut ave., employee of the Felton Furnace & Supply Co., part occupants of the lower floor, discovered the fire in the Warren st. block when he opened the establishment.

CAT FOUND GROGGY

Staples ran upstairs and gave the alarm to two families on the top floor of the three-story structure.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Belanger escaped to the street from one of these apartments with their pet dog.

Occupying the other were Charles Hussey, his wife, Margaret, and their five children—Margaret, 20; Charles, 16; Clair, 9, Donald, 7, and Kay, 4.

The eldest daughter carried little Kay down to the street, while the father took Donald, the rest making their own way out. Kay was sobbing for her kitten, "Skippy," but after the fire was out the animal was found beneath a bed, a bit groggy from smoke, but otherwise unharmed.

DAMAGE $5000

From the wintry atmosphere, the Hussey family found shelter in the home of a girl chum of Margaret's, Miss Claire Kelley, 18, of Ziegler st. Deputy Fire Chief William F. Quigley estimated the damage at $5000.

Drawtender's Life Preserver Saves Youth

A young seaman was saved from drowning today by a drawbridge tender, who threw him a life preserver after the youth had toppled out of a boat on which he was working near the Meridian st. bridge, East Boston.

The life preserver kept Fred Turcott, 19, of 101 Everett ave., Chelsea, afloat until he was picked up by a police boat and taken to City Hospital. His rescuer was Drawtender Joseph Kyle.

Hunt Boy, 18, And Girl, 22

An 18-year-old Arlington boy and a 22-year-old Lawrence girl have been missing from their place of employment in Mattapan State Hospital since last Thursday, it was reported to police today.

Miss Marie Ruth Delage of Brookfield st., Lawrence, and Albert Sweet of Pierce ave., Arlington, both failed to report for work at their jobs on that day, authorities said.

A night-state police alarm was broadcast for the young couple. Officials at the hospital said Miss Delage had visited young Sweet at his home.

Now recovering from pneumonia, two-year-old Joseph McLaughlin again faces a battle for life... scheduled to undergo a major operation as soon as he's stronger. Shown with his mother, Mrs. John McLaughlin, in their Roxbury home, little Johnny weighed but five pounds at birth, underwent an upside-down stomach operation when 14 days old, and five months later suffered a hernia.

MARTIN HAYS BARRED FROM LAW UNTIL 1943

Former State Rep. Martin Hays of Brighton, prominent Republican leader and a member of the bar for 34 years, today was suspended from the practice of law until Jan. 1, 1943, by Supreme Court Justice Henry T. Lummus.

The suspension came on petition of the Boston Bar Ass'n, in which Hays was charged with "gross misconduct."

This charge grew out of Hays' plea of guilty, in 1940, to a charge of evading federal income taxes through the alleged use of "straws" as holders of stock in the Bay State Greyhound Racing Ass'n, Inc. Hays, as a result of his indictment and plea, paid $12,905 in taxes and penalties and was fined $2000 and given a suspended sentence of a year and a day.

'STRAWS' REVEALED

In his answer to the Bar Association petition, Hays admitted having provided 14 "straws" out of a total of 23 to hold the stock of four promoters in the greyhound association, referred to in court as "the four ugly persons."

These four were identified as Arthur G. Barron, Louis B. Fox, Hyman Abrams and Mario A. Ingraffia.

A stipulation agreed to by counsel for the bar association and by Hays' counsel was presented at today's hearing, and it read in part:

"When stock of Bay State Greyhound Ass'n, Inc. was issued on April 25, 1935, shares were issued in the names of 23 'straws.' The corporate records of stockholders were kept in two books. Those two books show that of these 23 'straws,' some held stock for Fox, some for Abrams, some for Ingraffia and some for Barron."

NAMES FURNISHED

"Of these 23 'straws' 14 were furnished by Martin Hays. Their names and their relationship to Martin Hays follow:

"William F. Dwyer, closely associated in business matters for many years with Martin Hays; Mary E. Dwyer, wife of William F. Dwyer; Louise G. Redwick, sister of Mary E. Dwyer; Paul A. Burns, nephew of Eleanor F. Schayer, secretary to Martin Hays for some 30 years; Edward J. Fatten, driver of automobile for Hays."

"Joseph J. Twitchell, office associate of Hays for many years; Lillian Albright, related to Hays by marriage; Katherine M. O'Neill, sister-in-law of Hays; Margaret E. Gavan, widow whose husband had been a friend of Hays for many years; Eleanor F. Schayer, secretary to Hays."

"Mary McElligot, related to Martin Hays by marriage; Willard J. Gulesian, friend of Hays for many years; Eleanor A. Dwyer, sister of William F. Dwyer; Margaret Dwyer, mother of William F. Dwyer."

Connolly Asks For New Trial

John Patrick Connolly, former clerk of Suffolk Superior Civil Court now free on $10,000 bail after being convicted of accepting gratuities from employees of his office, has filed a petition for a new trial, it was revealed today.

Today was the last day of the one-year period in which Connolly had the right to file his motion. He had appealed a conviction that had brought with it a three to four year state prison sentence. The petition for the new trial alleges that the verdict was reached against the weight of evidence, and that justice was not done.

CIO Again Stops Ford Plant Work

DETROIT, March 19 (INS)—For the second time this month, a "spontaneous stoppage of work" involving thousands of employees occurred late yesterday at the Ford Motor Co. Widman said that 4000 employees in the gear and axle plant were idle for more than an hour in protest of the company's action in assertedly discharging 12 men for union activities.

Ice Grips Fish Fleet With Spring at Hand

Spring may be around the corner, but a survey of Boston's waterfront today produced all the evidence of winter at its worst as a storm-whipped and ice-coated fishing fleet limped into port.

Among the battered vessels was the trawler Wave of the Forty Fathom fleet, which appeared in imminent danger of capsizing under tons of ice on decks, ropes and spars. She had made a dash from Georges Bank to land an injured member of the crew who needed medical care.

Capt. Ivor Carlson of Gloucester, veteran skipper of the Wave, described the storm and the resulting accumulation of ice as the worst in his 27 years experience.

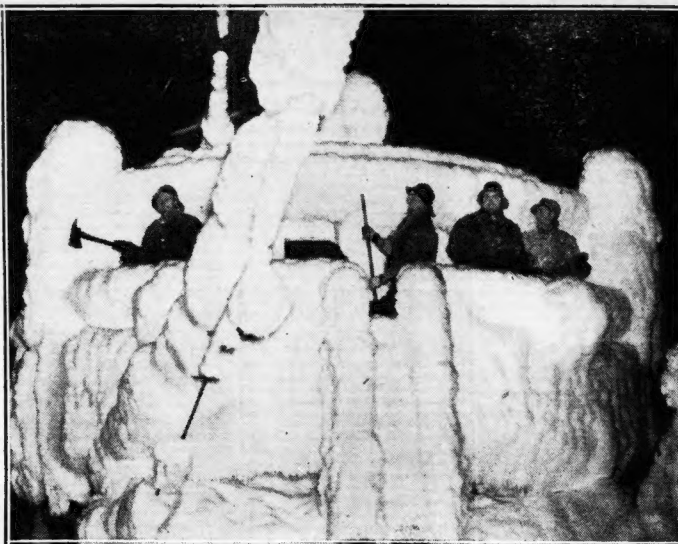

Skipper Carlson told how fierce northwest gales had hurled spray over the trawler's superstructure, which soon congealed into solid ice, three feet thick on the deck and pilot's house. Ropes and rigging were encased in ice two feet thick, while the frosted sides of the Wave gave the vessel the appearance of a phantom ship.

Had it not been for the catch of 196,000 pounds of fish in the holds, which served as ballast and helped to stabilize the trawler, she probably would have capsized from the top-heavy load of ice, Capt. Carlson stated.

And in the face of prevailing wintry conditions, the weatherman today seriously announced that spring will officially arrive with the vernal equinox at 7:21 p. m., tomorrow.

WREATHED IN A MANTLE OF ICE—Arriving at the Boston Fish Pier today, the trawler Wave forms a pretty picture to on lookers, but not to her crew as they face hard task of clearing tons of ice . . . frozen to decks and pilot house of vessel. After hours of continued labor, the crew finally chopped it clear of its wintry coating.

It works! wonders!

Feed Shortage Forces British Cattle Killing

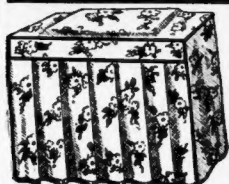

LONDON, March 19 (AP)—An appreciable number of cattle on British Isles farms must be slaughtered because of a feed shortage, Minister of Agriculture R. S. Hudson disclosed today.

He told farmers at Leicester to spare choice animals.

"I hope no one will run off with the idea that this is a panic policy of slaughter at any cost," Hudson said. "Far from this being the case, the country's cattle population this autumn will be well in advance of the low point it touched in years after the last war."

His Impatience Leads to Court

Just because of his impatience with taxicab drivers Joseph W. Hughes, 33, of Highland ave., Somerville, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction in Roxbury district court today.

Only a few weeks ago Hughes was released from jail after serving 18 months for larceny and assault with a dangerous weapon.

On the morning of March 8, it was testified before Judge Eisenstadt today, Hughes, another man and two girls, were looking for a taxicab in Eggleston sq.

There were plenty of cabs at the curb but no drivers. After shouting a few moments, the four piled into a cab, Hughes at the wheel.

Detective John L. Pimental of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation gave chase. He caught the cab and arrested Hughes.

Hughes was given the jail sen-

CARDINAL'S AIDE ASSAILS CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

Vigorous opposition of the Catholic church against Massachusetts ratification of the federal child labor amendment, as a "straight effort to put the youth under the bureaucratic government of the nation," was recorded at the State House today.

Twenty-eight states have already ratified the amendment and it has been before the Bay State Legislature every year for more than 15 years.

Rev. Thomas R. Reynolds of St. Matthew's Church, Dorchester, official representative of William Cardinal O'Connell, delivered a scathing attack on the amendment before the legislative constitutional laws committee. Fr. Reynolds charged it was "not a child amendment, neither is it a labor amendment."

"All of us are opposed to child labor," said the priest. "We hate it. A real child labor law is what we are seeking."

"But we don't mean you're going to have a youth control movement. That's exactly what took place in Italy and Germany. A year and a half ago in Germany I saw the children being drilled, going along with their Fascist leaders. The girls were carrying stretchers. That was youth control."

"In America we call it a child labor law. Let's not have any illusions."

Leading proponents of ratification, Kenneth I. Taylor, secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, said the principal aim of labor was to abolish evil practices, particularly the hiring out of whole families for commercial agriculture in the Southwest.

He was joined by representatives of the CIO, Socialist and Communist parties, Civil Liberties League and a scattering of legislators.

Yugoslavia to Sign March 26, Nazis Say

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 10 (AP)—The war-threatened Balkans, hoping for the best but fearing the worst, edged nearer a showdown in the British-Axis diplomatic struggle today with a German report that Yugoslavia would cast her lot with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo lineup March 26.

German circles here circulated this report following a 90-minute meeting between German Minister Viktor von Heeren and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic.

Furthermore, these quarters said the signing would be witnessed by Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, now en route to Rome and Berlin for Axis conferences.

TURK MINISTER SEES EDEN

The German-Yugoslav negotiations were matched at the other end of the Balkans by reliable reports that Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu of Turkey had left aboard a British plane for Palestine. He was believed to be en route to Egypt to confer with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

International News Service reported from Cairo that Eden conferred with Saracoglu at Cyprus yesterday.

International News Service correspondent George Balint reported today that Russia had given Turkey a virtual "green light" to enter the European war following a conference in Moscow by Turkish Envoy Haydar Aktey and a A. V. Vyshinsky, vice-chairman of the Council of Peoples' Commissars.—Editor's note.

A usually well-informed Greek source said Greece was preparing to divert 500,000 troops to her northern front for the campaign in co-operation with the British. Only 300,000 of the 800,000-man Greek army are holding the Albanian front against the Italians, this informant said.

36 NAZI DIVISIONS

On the other hand, the Germans were said to have 16 divisions, or perhaps 240,000 men, in Bulgaria along the Greek and Turkish frontiers.

Yugoslavia herself was deep in military preparations, with more men being called daily, but neutral military men doubted that this country would have 1,600,000 men under arms by the month's end, as had been predicted in some quarters.

With the British pouring some 300,000 troops into Greece, the Istanbul newspaper Yeni Sabah declared that a strong British stand

"is the only thing that can prevent a German victory" in the Balkans.

Diplomatic messages reaching Belgrade said the British began landing American-made planes today in Greece for the anticipated battle of the Balkans.

RAF pilots were said to have flown the planes from Cairo. Details as to the number and types were not disclosed.

Despite the German reports here, high Yugoslav quarters declared the Belgrade government had stiffened its attitude toward the Nazis, especially since British troops have landed in Greece. There was an unconfirmed report here that a special Russian envoy had arrived from Moscow to discuss foreign policy with Yugoslav leaders, but official quarters said no Russian had been received recently and the Soviet legation denied the story.

More Billions For U. S. Navy

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—The Senate appropriations committee approved unanimously today a $3,446,000,000 outlay—the largest in peace time history—for the maintenance and expansion of the Navy in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The House-approved measure, scheduled for Senate consideration tomorrow, carried $1,515,000,000 in appropriations and contract authority for new ships to seed the construction of a two-ocean fleet. Included were funds for six battle cruisers of from 20,000 to 25,000 tons, a new type of modern fighting ship.

The bill provided a $350,000,000 outlay for new navy airplanes.

The Senate committee wrote into the bill a clause permitting the navy to purchase canned beef from Argentina and other Latin-American countries, repealing a restriction in present law.

BUDS OF BEAUTY—Snap dragons of the new, large size win the admiration of Beverly Pratt of Wellesley Hills at the annual Spring Flower Show in Mechanics Hall.

Vitamin B-1 Treatment Cures 'Colds' of Trees

Under Vitamin B-1 ministrations as scientific as in a medical clinic, five tropical Australian bottlebrush trees gained steadily today to the amazement of thousands of visitors to the 70th annual flower show at Mechanics building.

Given injections of Vitamin B-1 in solution, only one of the six tropical trees brought here under hot house conditions failed to rally from colds.

Meanwhile, the rose came back into its own as the American flower—taking the play away from the orchid. For the President's Cup, the top award of the show, went to Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield of Marblehead for a beautiful garden of red, white, yellow and pink roses, arranged by Thomas Murray, superintendent of the Crowninshield greenhouse.

The Massachusetts Department of Agriculture prize for the "best commercial exhibit" was given to Haylen P. Kelsey, of East Bedford, for the wildwood garden.

Yesterday was "Maine Day" at the flower show, and a large delegation from the Pine Tree State, led by Mrs. Sumner Sewall, wife of the Governor, enjoyed the scene of blossoming beauty in Mechanics Building.

Another delegation of 400 arrived from New Bedford and still other groups made a pilgrimage from Springfield. Today will be "Friends of France" day.

Another Detroit Councilman Indicted

DETROIT, March 19 (AP)—A special grand jury today indicted a second Detroit councilman on charges of receiving a bribe in connection with the contract award on the $8,300,000 Herman Gardens low-cost housing project here.

Named today was Robert G. Ewald, charged with receiving $5000 to influence his vote on the award. John F. Hamilton, councilman, indicted yesterday, charged with accepting a $15,000 bribe, confessed.

Jury Awards Him $900 for Cop Beating

Upsetting a lower court decision, a Suffolk superior court jury today awarded damages totalling $900 to Mario Corsi, 28-year-old Hyde Park contractor, for a beating he suffered at the hands of policemen.

The verdict was returned against Capt. Harry T. Grace, Special Officer John J. Moynihan and Patrolman Robert A. Kirk. Charges of false arrest, false imprisonment and malicious prosecution were dropped after Judge John E. Swift directed verdicts of not guilty.

Similar charges against Officer Henry J. Williams and Sgt. Norman P. Cross were also dropped.

A West Roxbury district court judge had found Corsi guilty of assault and battery on Moynihan and Williams. Corsi said he came out of his house the night of July 16, 1938, and found two men in the yard, Moynihan and Williams.

Corsi said he ordered them out of the yard, got into an argument and then a fist fight, that ended only when Williams threatened to shoot him. Later at the station house, he said, Capt. Grace and Kirk also struck him.

JURY HEARS CHARGE, GETS LYONS CASE

It wasn't true? When Mayor Lyons said to him, 'Yes. You're acceptable to me, but you'll have to pay one-third kickback' he came out in the open."

CALLED MUSCLE MEN

Bradford testified of Kimball that he had paid Lyons $1808 at the latter's office, and reviewed testimony of James E. McLaughlin, the architect, that he had talked to Mannos and later to Lyons and got contracts.

Tabbing Lyons and Mannos as "municipal muscle men" Bradford declared that after "collecting a golden harvest from architects" the pair spent the proceeds on trips to the New Orleans Mardi Gras, to California and to Miami.

"The witnesses who appeared here have branded themselves as a disgrace to their profession, but they told you the truth—the truth forced from them through examination of their books and records, and their consciences."

Winding up his argument, Bradford declared:

"No conflagration could be as devastating to our country as this deliberate wrecking of the fabric of our form of government" and called on the jury to remember that every taxpayer, job holder and welfare recipient is affected by the case.

Nazi-Ruled Pay Heavily

LONDON, March 19 (AP)—R. A. Butler, parliamentary undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today that five European countries occupied by Germany had been forced to pay the Reich the cash equivalent of £1,050,000,000 (about $4,200,000,000) annually above their losses in industrial supplies, foodstuffs and confiscations.

He estimated that Norway had to pay the highest per capita cost for support of the German occupation army—£68,000,000 (about $272,000,000) or £25 (about $100) per person.

Denmark's share, he said, was £22,000,000 (about $104,000,000) or £8 per capita; Belgium's £75,000,000 (about $300,000,000) or £26 Holland's £4,900,000 (about $216,000,000) or £6; and France's £827,000,000 (about $3,308,000,000) or £20.

NAZIS CALL U-BOAT TIP BRITISH TRICK

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, March 19.—The German government today wrote off the latest "U-boat scare" as outright British propaganda "to stampede America into war."

Information allegedly given to United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles by British Ambassador Lord Halifax that a German submarine is on its way to raid shipping off the United States was termed "too transparent British propaganda to be taken seriously."

U-boat movements themselves are military secrets, a spokesman said, so that individual cases cannot be discussed. But Halifax "tip" was bracketed with recent speeches by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and John G. Winant, American ambassador to London, as symptomatic of the "unbridled war hysteria campaign now being staged to whip up America."

Analyst Visions Sea Battles Near U. S.

By CAPT. JOHN H. CRAIG

U. S. MARINE CORPS, RETIRED

Written especially for International News Service

The dramatic statement by Prime Minister Winston Churchill that German submarines and battle cruisers have crossed to the American side of the Atlantic foreshadows a time when sea battles may be fought in U. S. waters, with all the consequences such fighting will entail.

The mere fact that German capital ships have been able to break through Britain's naval cordon and reach the merchant convoys speaks eloquently of the desperate nature of the fight British sea forces are waging.

In all the course of the World War, from 1914 to 1918, not a single German first class ship succeeded in escaping from the Kaiser's bases at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven. German surface raiders in that struggle were confined to a few small vessels such as the Emden and the Seeadler.

Greatest basic reason for Britain's less advantageous position today is that now she has no strong sea allies. In the World War nearly all the powerful navies of the world worked with the British fleet. And, since 1918, the tactics and weapons of sea war have changed to Britain's disadvantage. In the World War, of all Germany's sea weapons only the submarine was really dangerous.

BUILD SPEEDY RAIDERS
But after that conflict, German Admiral Wegener wrote of the Kaiser's naval mistakes. Wegener advocated the building of fast, powerful naval raiders to operate against Britain's merchant ships. "Use air-bombers," he said. "Raid commerce, don't fight warships."

Germany first built pocket battle-ships, but these were not fast enough, did not carry heavy enough armor. But later craft, the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau, carry 11-inch guns, heavy armor and are said to make 30 knots. Then there are the Bismarck and Tirpitz, reportedly completed, with 18-inch guns and more than 30 knots speed. Probably these are the battle cruisers of which Churchill spoke.

On Nov. 8 and again on Feb. 12 German surface raiders attacked large British convoys in mid-Atlantic, claiming the sinking of numerous supply-vessels. Ships like the Scharnhorst or the Bismarck could probably send a dozen merchant ships to the bottom with a few salvos.

U-BOATS A MENACE
Meantime, German naval bombing planes patrol the approaches to the British Isles in a thousand-mile arc from France to Norway. The Nazis claim that these have been sending shipping to the bottom by the thousands of tons.

Eggsent menace of all remains the undersea boats. Hitler's shipyards are said to be turning these out in huge numbers by mass production methods.

According to statements from London, the Nazis by their triple-pipe naval war have sunk more than 5,000,000 tons of shipping during the first 18 months of the present war. And now spring ap-

BRITISH DRIVE INTO ETHIOPIA CONTINUES

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, March 19 (AP)—

The British today announced the capture of Jijiga, strategic eastern Ethiopian town controlling the road to Harar, a provincial capital.

The town fell Monday before the advance of British troops and penetrated E. Ethiopia from Italian Somaliland about two weeks ago and advanced over the Mogadiscio-Harar road, they said.

These troops swept up over the vast arid Ogaden plateau 150 miles in three days. Pilots of bombers and fighting planes who preceded them reported the Italians were on the run.

At Jijiga the road turns west to Harar, 50 miles distant. Jijiga itself lies 70 miles southeast of Dire Dawa, on the railroad to Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital.

A military spokesman said the troops which began the advance from Mogadiscio would attempt to cut the railway, thus isolating Addis Ababa, as other British forces advanced from the west and south.

British Claim Italian Losses Heavy in Eritrea

CAIRO, Egypt, March 19 (AP)—

British forces have captured additional "important positions" south of besieged Cheren in Eritrea and repulsed Italian counter-attacks with "serious losses" to the Fascists, the Middle East command announced today.

The action was part of a campaign aimed at smashing the Italians before the rainy season starts, military circles indicated.

Heavy Italian forces have held up the British at Cheren. An army described as the greatest ever assembled in this area has been gathered by Britain for the effort—touched off by the launching of a new offensive two days ago in the Cheren sector of Eritrea, where 35,000 Italian troops entrenched on strategic heights have been blocking the path to the colonial capital of Asmara and the Red sea coast.

U. S. Tests Near For Big Bomber

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 19 (INS)—Within a few days, the biggest airplane in the world, the 82-ton Douglas super-bomber, will emerge from the factory for its first tests.

Douglas officials disclosed this progress today in announcing that the installation of the landing gear is completed and ready for checking.

The landing gears weigh five tons, and the two main wheels are eight feet in diameter. It is said a secret device has been invented which will start the wheels in motion before the plans lands in order to take up the shock of ground contact.

The B-19 is being built for the U. S. Army Air Corps. It has a wing spread of 212 feet and is powered by four 2000-horsepower engines. It has a non-stop range in excess of 7700 miles and a load capacity of 18 tons of bombs.

Destroyer Lane Urged As Safer Than Convoys

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—Shipping sources reported today that some American experts had advised the British to abandon the convoy system and establish a lane of destroyers across the Atlantic in an effort to thwart the increasing German threat to vital war supplies from America.

American shipping experts were understood to have told the British that the convoy system would have to be revised if the steadily mounting toll of shipping losses was to be cut down.

American—and to some extent—British—criticism of the convoy system has been based on two points.

MASS TARGETS
It bunches groups of inadequately protected ships into a "mass target" for Axis air, surface and underwater raiders.

It reduces efficient use of badly needed bottoms, since fast merchantmen lose days while waiting for convoys to assemble and then must reduce their speed to that of the slowest unit of the convoy.

In broad outline the new plan would call for a constant patrol of some 50 destroyers along the 2,000 miles of great circle route from Labrador to the British Isles. They would be rotated in duty so that 40 always would be on watch while 10 either would be in port refueling or en route to their posts for a two weeks tour.

Each of these 40 destroyers would patrol a 50-mile sector of the Atlantic 10 times a day, establishing a lane across the Atlantic every inch of which would be policed by a warship every two to three hours.

ALWAY NEAR
At no time, shipping experts pointed out, would a destroyer be more than an hour's distance from any merchantman in the lane.

In this lane ships carrying supplies to Britain would be given a clear go ahead.

Advocates of the plan say it would mean adequate protection since they believe few if any German raiders would be able to penetrate a lane so constantly patrolled.

Wheeler Asks Probe Of 'U-Boats Off Coast'

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—The reported threat of German U-boat operations off the North Atlantic coast brought a call today for a Senate investigation and kept a controversy going on the question of American convoys.

Poo-pooing the submarine reports as "British propaganda," Sen. Wheeler (D.) of Montana said that the Senate should authorize a special committee to look into the source of such information.

"If something should happen to American vessels," he told reporters, "it would immediately be claimed that it was this German submarine that caused the trouble."

G. O. P. GROUP FIGHTS TO CUT AID FUND

Three other House members spoke of war fears.

Rep. Dikens (R.) of Illinois while announcing he would back the appropriation, said he could not see how the nation could escape "the vortex of events that are inexorably dragging us down the path toward conflict."

Nevertheless, he argued, in view of the commitments of the President and Congress, it would be illogical not to provide adequate funds now for the aid program.

A prediction that the United States would be plunged into war within "60 or 90 days" came from Rep. Knutson (R.) of Minnesota, who voted against the nation's entry into the World War, and Rep. Tinkham (R.) of Massachusetts, assailed the appropriations request on the ground that its purpose was "to engage in war and to implement dictatorship."

A quorum call was required to bring enough members to the floor to permit the debate to begin yesterday. Two hours later, only 110 could be mustered. After four hours of discussion, a scant 40 members were on the floor, and at adjournment at 8:22 p. m. only 13 were present.

WOULD SAVE MORALE

Reps. Jones (R.) of Ohio, Johns (R.) of Wisconsin and Bender (R.) of Ohio commented on the small attendance, Jones asserting that it was "important that we maintain the morale of our own Congress." Bender said the paucity "bears out the statement that we have one-man government."

At this juncture Rep. Woodrum (D.) of Virginia, in charge of the bill, said he thought it was "only fair" to say that the agreement had been that "nothing would be done today on this bill except to listen to speeches." He remarked that the question had been thoroughly discussed recently and, until presentation of amendments began, members "might as well stay at their offices."

For the most part, supporters of the bill monopolized the floor during the session, advocating double quick approval of the appropriation. Republicans who voted against the lease-lend program said, in effect, that now the British aid law had been passed, Congress should uphold the nation's policy by providing the funds.

Hull Suffers Worst Nazi Raid

Severe damage and a number of deaths were caused, it was stated.

RAF ATTACK

The RAF attack was understood to have been a heavy one, following up the previous night's raid on Bremen, Wilhelmshaven, Emden, Rotterdam and Oldenburg, during which the RAF showered bombs on docks, shipyards, industrial areas and other targets.

A Berlin communique today said the enemy last night flew over north Germany and dropped incendiaries and explosives into two coastal cities. Damages inflicted were slight. It was possible to extinguish all fires very soon. A number of civilians was killed and many were injured. The enemy lost five planes, two of them downed by night pursuit planes. One of our planes has not returned.—Editor's note.

Late this morning a British hurricane fighter shot down a German bomber off the east Anglian coast.

LONDON BOMBED

London experienced its 524th air raid alarm, which lasted from dusk to dawn. Bombs fell on one London district, causing at least two deaths and a damaging residential property. In another London area two persons were trapped in a wrecked house and in a third district high explosive bombs demolished several houses. Houses were damaged and some casualties also were caused on the outskirts of London.

In a southeastern coastal town a bomb crashed into a private house, causing some casualties and six persons were killed by bombs that fell on a northeastern town.

THE AGE PARLEY SET IN BUS STRIKE

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP) —

CIO leaders and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia reached an agreement today whereby the Transport Workers Union will resume negotiations with Manhattan's two major bus companies in an effort to settle the 30-day-old strike.

Philip Murray, CIO president, made the announcement after an hour's conference with the mayor. The direct negotiation broke off after attempts to agree on disputed points failed, were to resume at City Hall later today.

So far as he knew Murray said, there would be no mediator or third party at the conference. There was no indication the strikers would return to work before a settlement was reached.

"Mr. Haywood (A. A. S. Haywood, national CIO organizer) and I called on the mayor this morning for the purpose of securing a clarification of the paper which he submitted to the union and companies yesterday afternoon," Murray said.

"As a result of our conversation it was agreed that there would be a resumption of negotiations this afternoon."

Shortly before this, apparent break in the deadlock, Mayor LaGuardia announced he had accepted a recommendation of the board to inquire into the strike and make public the issues involved—a move he had said he would take if the opposing sides did not agree to submit the dispute to arbitration.

The bus companies, operating 27 lines and carrying 900,000 riders daily, had agreed to the arbitration proposal. Murray's statement was the union's answer, and it meant that LaGuardia would withhold formal appointment of the board at this time.

Direct negotiations broke down two weeks ago and attempts by the mayor and the head of the State's mediation board to bring a settlement subsequently were unsuccessful.

B. C. High Magazine Wins National Honor

The Botolphian, quarterly literary magazine published by the students of Boston College High School, today was awarded first honors in the national competition conducted by the Columbia Scholastic Press Assn.

Among 100 publications from high schools of 1500 enrollment, the Botolphian placed first, according to word received from from officials of the Columbia University School of Journalism. The award was made on the basis of general excellence in writing and editing.

Editors-in-chief of the Botolphian are Walter Abbott and J. Frank Devine, both of the class of 1911.

Channing Pollock Fears Censorship

LOS ANGELES, March 19 (AP) — Deep in gloom, Playwright Channing Pollock has arrived for a lecture tour.

"After this war there ain't goin' to be no nothin'," he said in an interview.

He expressed fear that war censorship would prove harmful to the theater, that it might become more noticeable in the drama, and predicted that the heat of conflict would make for generally bad writing.

Ousted Envoy's Suit Denies He Mimicked F. D.

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) —

Through a district court complaint filed against Sec. Hull and other State Department officials, Ogden H. Hammond, Jr., son of a former ambassador to Spain, sought today to block his dismissal from a career post in the foreign service.

The 29-year-old Yale alumnus declared in his petition that A. A. Berle, Jr., assistant secretary of state, had asked him to resign because of reports that he had publicly mimicked President Roosevelt, and had "disloyal dealings with female agent of a foreign government."

Hammond specifically denied the truth of both reports and stated they represented a "vicious and malicious fabrication."

Hammond served at Vienna and Leipzig, and recently has been on leave of absence from the department.

Hammond supported his petition with exhibits which included an affidavit of Lily Stein of New York that their relations in Vienna and New York were "purely platonic."

Home on Range Still His Home

Shellfire or no shellfire, Samuel C. Dickinson, of the town of Harvard, likes to take his time.

He was told Thursday his 14-room house was in the middle of a new artillery range for Fort Devens, the government had arranged to buy it and that he had better move.

But today Dickinson and his family were still there.

In federal court, where Judge McEllean granted a petition to eject him, Dickinson explained through his counsel he did not like to hurry packing things.

Said the judge: "If the man gets out all right. If he doesn't, he'll put out. He'll get assistance. If he doesn't get out promptly."

Jews Are Retired In French Judiciary

VICHY, France, March 19 (AP) — Twenty-five Jewish judges and attorneys-general were retired under anti-Semitic laws today as Minister of Justice Joseph Barthélemy announced a far-reaching shakeup of the French judiciary.

Twenty-two other judges were removed and 10 more transferred to new posts. Thirty-four new judges were nominated. Three mayors and one department councillor also were removed.

P.O. Clerk for 28 Years Held in Mail Theft

After an unblemished record of 28 years in the postal service, LaRoy Ernest Stearns, 47, clerk at the Attleboro postoffice, landed in federal court today charged with theft from the mails.

He was specifically charged with stealing a letter addressed to the superintendent of the Working Boys' Home in Newton, said to have contained several dollar bills. U. S. Comm. Donovan held Stearns for the grand jury.

ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT SET FOR CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP) —

A new agreement between the United States and Canada to start work on the St. Lawrence navigation-power project, or part of it, will be presented to Congress and the Canadian Parliament simultaneously Friday, the White House announced today.

Stephen T. Early, White House press secretary, made the announcement after talking by telephone with A. A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, now in Canada completing the final phases of the agreement.

The President's message to Congress, Early said, would be very brief and would be accompanied by the text of the agreement.

Early said he did not know whether the President would recommend starting the entire project, including both power development and improvement of the St. Lawrence to permit ocean-going traffic from the Great Lakes to the sea, or just a power dam at Mesaba, N. Y., where preliminary borings have been made.

The new agreement, the President told a press conference, would not be in the form of a treaty. Hence, he added, it would require only a majority vote in Congress.

State Trooper Inducted Into Army

WORCESTER, March 19 (AP) — State Trooper Edward A. Gibbons, Framingham barracks, was inducted into military service here today and will swap his state trooper's uniform for the olive drab at Camp Edwards, thus settling the question, in Massachusetts at least, as to whether state policemen are eligible to military service.

'GREAT DICTATOR' IN RETURN ENGAGEMENT ON LOEW'S SCREENS TOMORROW

Popular Prices For Chaplin Hit

Regular prices will prevail for the return engagement of the most astounding comedy of the year, Charlie Chaplin's own production, "The Great Dictator," at Loew's State and to please readers to tomorrow.

For the first time in his career, Chaplin, who has made and directed his own pictures, sprang on the screen as a dictator, which millions of moviegoers have enjoyed.

Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" is the story of a man who is a victim of the world's war and world pre-emption and his heroic personality.

MASTERS OF COMEDY
This production has caused unprecedented comment as it is the most unusual role the famed comedian ever performed in his entire career.

Not forgetting the lovely Paulette Goddard and the lovely Jack Oakie, Goddard is playing the role of a woman who is a victim of the world's war and world pre-emption and his heroic personality.

In addition to Miss Goddard and Oakie, Chaplin is supported by a brilliant cast including Henry Daniell, Billy Gilbert and Reginald Gardner.

"Me" Boston Blackie, with Chester Morris in the title role, is the second feature at Loew's State beginning this Thursday. In the film, which is based on the adventures of the beloved rogue created by author Jack Boyle, Morris is a combination Sherlock Holmes, Houdini and Raffles rolled into one. Rochelle Hudson and Clarence Work play the leading feminine roles.

PAULETTE GODDARD in "The Great Dictator," which plays a return Boston engagement at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters, starting tomorrow.

'Dulcy' on Beacon Screen Tomorrow

"Dulcy," with Ann Southern in the title role and Ian Hunter playing opposite her, and "Michael Shayne, Detective," with Lloyd Nolan and Margorie Weaver, are to be seen on the Beacon screen for the three days, starting tomorrow.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Louella O. Parsons, noted Filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

'Strawberry Blonde' At Scollay, Modern

"Strawberry Blonde," delightful comedy of the good, old days co-starring James Cagney, Olivia De Havilland and Rita Hayworth, comes to Scollay and Modern screens on Friday as the top feature.

On the same bill will be seen "The Monster and the Girl," with Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Paul Lukas, and Joseph Calleia.

'Las Vegas' Showing to Aid Greek Fund 'Song of the Road' to Follow 'Here's Ireland' at Fine Arts

"Las Vegas Nights," New Paramount musical, featuring Tommy Dorsey and his band, Ben Wheeler, Phil Regan, Constance Moore, Lillian Cornell and Virginia Dale, will be given a special pre-lease showing at Friday's midnight stage and screen show for the benefit of the Greek war relief at Metropolitan Theater.

Prominently featuring the swing music of Dorsey and his band, the story tells the exciting adventure of a vaudeville troupe which comes to Las Vegas broke, but ends up by owning a night club and making a fortune. There are four brand new hit songs in the picture.

One of the most glittering arrays of stage stars and night club favorites to be gathered together in years will be featured in the big stage show that has been especially arranged.

With the popular Joe Rubin as master of ceremonies, the cast includes such favorites as Helen Morgan now appearing at the Varian-Weeks, Danny Weeks, of the Hayfair, Madeleine White and Harry Spear, of the Latin Quarter; Cary Leon, the McKays, and Patsey Marr, of the Coconut Grove; and Elaine Jordan, Barbara Bell, and Monte from the Beachcombers. In addition, the stars of the local stage attractions have promised to appear, and the 1941 Hasty Pudding show is sending two of its most talented performers, Robert Bacon, son of the former Lt. Governor, and George Blackman. The gala show is being presented by the combined motion picture theaters of Greater Boston, with all proceeds to go to the Greek war relief. Tickets can be purchased at all theaters in Greater Boston.

Ending its 10-week run, "Here Is Ireland," tomorrow makes way on the Fine Arts screen for "Song of the Road," starring the copyrighted Harry Lauder.

This will be the New England premiere for "Song of the Road," which presents Scotland's famed ambassador of good-will in his only talking picture, a picture which is said to be richly seasoned with his salty wit, infectious bonhomie and lifting songs. "Song of the Road" has been halloed, too, for the realism and with which it captures the beauty and charm of the Scottish highlands and the simple hominess of Scottish life.

On the same bill will be seen the latest issue of "March of Time," Walt Disney's cartoon and latest newswreck.

'Buck Privates' Begins 4-Day Run at Keith-Boston Tomorrow

Lead-off picture from Hollywood about the funny side of camp life of the conscripts in Uncle Sam's fighting forces, "Buck Privates," comes to the RKO Boston Theater tomorrow... this in addition to seven big Broadway stage acts. The stage and screen bill will have a four-day run.

"Buck Privates" features Budd Abbott and Lou Costello, semi-comic battlers of radio and stage who were immediately signed to a long-term contract following their hit in "One Night in the Tropics." Teamed with them in the Universal comedy are the Andrews Sisters, the boogie-woogie girls of rhythm, who also hit the boxoffice jackpot in their first film, "Argentine Nights."

Lee Bowman, recently opposite Lana Turner in a series of films; Alan Curtis, last in "High Sierra," and Jane Frazee, newcomer, form a two-boys-and-a-girl romantic combination. Nat Pendleton has one of the main supporting comedy roles.

LOU COSTELLO and Nina Oslo in "Buck Privates," opening tomorrow on RKO-Boston screen.

Co-headlining the stage bill are the comedy team of Collins and Peterson, Josephine Huston, radio and screen star, and Roy Smeck, wizard of the strings, displaying his musical versatility on steel guitars, banjos and ukuleles.

In addition the stage show offers Paul Winchell, world's youngest ventriloquist; Alexander and Fanton, ballet artists; Roy Pickert and Billie Worth, dance team, and the Demnatli Troupe, gymnasts.

'Thing Called Love' At Uptown Friday

Starting Friday, Uptown's screen will show "This Thing Called Love," co-starring Melvyn Douglas and Rosalind Russell, and "Buck Privates," which features Abbott and Costello, and the talented Andrews Sisters of radio fame.

"The Lady Eve" by Preston Sturges' third successive hit, and "Tall, Dark and Handsome," Twentieth Century-Fox comedy with Cesar Romero, Virginia Gilmore and Milton Berle, are scheduled to be in programing tomorrow on Paramount and Fenway screens.

Written and directed by Sturges, the cast of "The Lady Eve" featured the talents of Jack and Henry Fonda, in the top roles.

They are admirably supported by Charles Coburn, Eugene Palette, Eric Blore, William Demarest and William Hopper. The story starts out as a rich young man, an expert on snakes, a naive fellow who becomes the target for a gang of slick international card sharks as they attempt to steal a ship from an Amazonian expedition.

The beautiful leader of the sharpshooters is Barbara Stanwyck, and when love takes a hand in the proceeding the picture develops into a comedy. Dead End is claimed the best comedy in years.

Bristling with funny dialogue and sparkling with hilarious situations, Tall, Dark and Handsome is a comedy thriller that has since Damon Runyon's "A Slight Case of Murder" made box office history.

The story has suave Cesar Romero fall in love with a pretty department store nursemaid, played by attractive Virginia Gilmore, Romero's girl, who is a "heartbreaker" who hasn't the "heart" to kill. All done in a highly satirical vein, the story revolves about the efforts of the nursemaid to outwit a rival mob with a big bang.

Besides Romero, Miss Gilmore and Berle, the cast includes Charlotte Greenwood, Sheldon Leonard and Frank Jenks. There are four new hit tunes from the pen of Leo Rubin and Ralph Rainger. H. Bruce Humberstone directed.

Jackson College Girls Answer Britons' Request

Jackson Girls Write Prisoners

Oh, the English lassies must have forgotten their boys abroad, now that April's nearly here . . . for four prisoners at Osslag Concentration Camp in Germany have asked aid from America, specifically Boston.

And four lovely Jackson College girls have rushed help immediately in the form of cigarettes, chocolate and letters full of spring cheer.

It all came about through a letter received at the Mayor's office, in which four young British army officers, interned prisoners of war in the Osslag camp, yearn to correspond with four American girls.

DEN NUMBER 1410

Capt. M. W. Horne, of the Royal Engineers, who is war prisoner No. 1410, wrote the latter in behalf of himself and three interned comrades; Capt. H. S. Mauchan of the Black Watch, Capt. J. Bond of the Royal Artillery, and Lieut. G. Martin, also of the Royal Engineers.

Who knows? Perhaps war romances are in the air, but today the Jackson girls wrote because of their sympathy and their deep concern over the war.

Shirley Boulanger, a junior from South Hanson, wearing the gold wings her father won in the last war on her jacket, wrote in part:

"My father was first lieutenant in the Royal Air Force during the first World War. He went over with the Medical Unit, and after England went to war he joined the R.A.F. I have an uncle in the Canadian Army. So I am writing to you because I feel more than just a bystander of this war."

FATHER A MAJOR

Christine Alley, a sophomore from Middleboro, wrote:

"My father is a major in the Medical Reserve. I don't know what a prison camp is like, or how much of what I say will be censored. Here at college we are just preparing for a gay social spring, with formals, parties and plays, and I think of you in the prison camp, and the English springs you must be dreaming of in your country before the war."

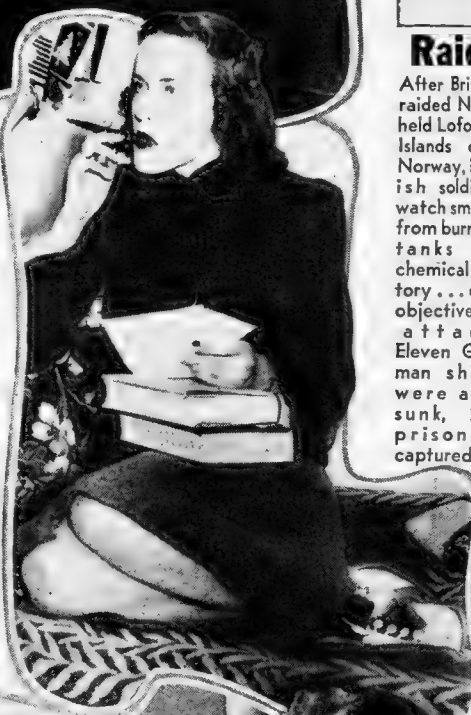

Marion Savage, a senior, the only girl editor of the Tufts Weekly, Jo Smith, a junior from North Attleboro, and Brenda Lewis, an Arlington junior, also wrote to the English prisoners.

They hope to receive answers, and to continue to send any cheer they can into the prisoner's gloomy life away from England.

Write

Request of British prisoners of war to correspond with American girls is met with immediate response . . . and Jackson College girls get busy with their pens. Mailing their letters (above) are Marion Savage and Jo Smith while Christine Alley (right) dreams over hers. Shirley Boulanger and Brenda Lewis (below) team up to cheer up a soldier.

"WHY KEEP KILLING?" asks Mrs. Herbert B. Ehrmann, alert and busy executive secretary of the Massachusetts Council for Abolition of the Death Penalty.

Mrs. Ehrmann's purpose is to speed legislative action on bills which would do away with the electric chair and substitute prison sentences for convicted murderers.

The subject is an important one, and it certainly merits more consideration than it usually receives.

There are one hundred and ninety legal executions in an average year in the United States.

Twenty-two States, including Massachusetts, employ electrocution.

Five States, notably Nevada and North Carolina, use lethal gas.

Fourteen States still adhere to the practice of hanging.

Seven States, whose law-makers believe human society has no right to take life so long as it cannot restore life, have made life imprisonment their maximum penalty.

They are: Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Supporting the stand of these States, the American League to Abolish Capital Punishment conducted a nationwide survey a few years ago and announced:

"An examination of the homicide rates for the different States, by years, over a prolonged period of time, shows that in general, the homicide rate is lower in abolition States than in neighboring States retaining capital punishment; and in no case is it as high as the average rate in the same section of the country."

This will interest Mrs. Ehrmann; humanitarian-minded Senators and Representatives, also.

THE WISE PLAN of Mrs. Leslie Cutler, Needham Representative, to oblige all persons contemplating matrimony to undergo physical examinations still lacks unanimous support on Beacon Hill.

WHY?

Our guess is that many otherwise well-informed persons fail to appreciate the seriousness of the social disease menace.

The malady, in its various forms, afflicts 11,460 persons in our State in a typical year.

This is of course a conservative figure.

As every physician knows, a great many cases are unreported, because infected persons often delay treatment through fear of shame and disgrace.

Mrs. Cutler and the thousands who are in favor of the law she hopes to see enacted do not wish to prevent anybody's marriage.

They merely ask that prospective brides and bridegrooms ascertain their physical condition before they go to the altar.

In this way, the health of the unborn is going to be protected, and Massachusetts will have fewer children doomed at birth to insanity, imbecility and early death.

It is also important that legislators realize that New Hampshire and nineteen other States have laws requiring pre-marital blood tests.

A NEW FAD is for husbands and wives to dress alike. If his favorite color is blue, she adopts it. If he has a passion for tweeds, she buys a dress or suit of like material.

When Mr. Jones comes home with a gray felt hat to wear in the Easter Parade, Mrs. Jones obediently tosses her straw, flower-decked headgear into the wastebasket and goes out and purchases a simple, unadorned fedora.

TOO GLAMOROUS?
Faddists Say It Is

This puts more money into circulation, creates jobs and adds to the general happiness.

However, we have a rather confirmed suspicion that the average woman will not take kindly to any fashion campaign that proposes to make her the sartorial twin of her husband.

Most wives yearn for something more glamorous and flattering than a felt hat with a satin band around it.

Besides, few women look their best in pants or slacks.

On The Side

SOME grievances offered by wives as grounds for divorce are distinctly trivial. However, I don't blame that Oklahoma wife who asked for a divorce because when she started arguing angrily with her husband he shouted his answers through a megaphone he had purchased for the purpose. . . . Statistics continue to reveal that Indians are multiplying faster than any racial group in the United States. Again we are paused to reflect on the possibility that nature may have decided to give the country back to the Indians. . . . Empress Nagako of Japan has 40 personal maids. That's a lot of personal maids, what? It's probably even more than Marlene Dietrich wishes she had. The Empress of Japan lives a much regulated life. She is permitted to think of and discuss only six things: her husband, the sun, music, flowers, birds and perfume. She is not permitted to read a newspaper, have a radio or talk over the telephone. She is kept in complete ignorance of what is going on in the outside world. She doesn't even know there is a war in Europe. And all her dresses must be white.

ASIDES. It won't be long now before we will be able to roll from New York down to Buenos Aires and Rio on the Pan-American highway. Parts of this highway will go through country where the wild animals are still very wild. When I make the trip I will stick to daytime driving. I won't want any leopards leaping out of trees on to my frail frame. . . . A film based on the story, "A Whiff of

RIO DE JANEIRO'S PICTURESQUE HARBOR
A Principal Attraction on Great Pan-American Highway

Heliotope," is announced. This yarn has already been used for films twice, maybe three times. Hollywood is sorely in need of producers with the brains and courage to do something new and different. Ninety per cent of the film production executives are living and thinking in the past.

CONFIDENTIAL. Your wife agreed to "obey" you, of course. How's she doing? Having any difficulty with her? Just heard of a man in Wisconsin who insisted his wife always say, "Yes, sir" when he spoke to her. When this wife forgot to answer as instructed, her husband made her stand in a corner and say "Yes, sir" five hundred times. . . . "You appear incurably optimistic," writes a New Yorker. Well, is that bad, sir? However, it is not altogether true of me. I just try to relax and not let the blues overpower me. I am capable of doing quite a nice bit of worrying. In fact, I often think of the worst the future might have to offer and then try to prepare for it. At times am actually something like the man who wrote:

*The thoughts of others,
Were light and fleeting,
Of lovers meetings
Of luck or fame.*

SIDEGLIGHTS: Mentioned in the dispatches is an "unusual" Nazi submarine which requires a crew of "only 25 men." Japanese have a submarine which can be operated by three men and is built at a cost of about $5000. This flivver submarine carries only one torpedo.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday—Dr. Harriet Elliott came to my press conference yesterday morning and gave us all a great deal of interesting information.

The thing that stood out in my mind was the fact that she felt so strongly that what we should all try to do is to increase production of consumer goods as well as of defense goods, so that we could meet the demands of increased buying power which probably lies ahead of us.

Profits in this emergency should not come from higher prices paid for goods, but should come through increased sales.

Dr. Elliott pointed out that when sacrifices are demanded of us they should be made willingly, but they would not prevent expansion in the production of consumer goods where there was no interference with inevitable and valuable defense work.

Last night we all attended the opening of the National Gallery of Art, given by the late Mr. Andrew Mellon, to which Mr. Samuel H. Kress has also given a wonderful collection of paintings.

EDUCATION comes to all of us through contact with things of beauty, wherever they may be. As we develop appreciation and understanding of new forms of beauty, we become rounded and educated human beings.

These things are being suppressed in other countries today. In every democracy, we must insist on the development of every avenue for increasing the enjoyment of beauty.

The flower show is on in New York city this week and I have been told that a new white callieya orchid has been named for Lady Halifax. She moves with such grace and dignity, and while orchids are so lovely and graceful, that I think the growers made a very happy choice in this name.

I hope I shall see the flower show if I am in New York city for a day the end of this week, though I fear the flowers may then have begun to fade.

I HAVE just read two different things, both of which I want to mention. One of them is a short story in "Liberty" called: "A Man Only Half Dies," by Clark McMeekin with George Madden Martin.

If you have not read it, I think you will find it worth the few minutes it takes because of the lesson it teaches, that sacrifice and love are not the prerogatives of any one race.

Next, the commissioner of education, Dr. John W. Studebaker, has issued a service bulletin on defense training in vocational schools, which deals with the legal rights and obligations of workers. He has suggested that this bulletin be used in classes, forums and small discussion groups by the students.

I can think of no information which will prove more valuable to them.

HOPKINS GOES SOUTH WITH PRESIDENT

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 19—HARRY HOPKINS: The President will have other guests, in addition to you, when he leaves for the South this week. Pa Watson and Harold Ickes also will accompany him . . . GENE TUNNEY: Another ex-heavyweight champion of the world is following your suit and offering his services as a boxing and physical training instructor for the armed forces. Jim Braddock would like to be assigned to the training post at Camp Dix, but can't get a commission . . . JOHN L. LEWIS: When the President appoints his Mediation Board, consisting of four laborites, four industrialists and three men representing the public, he will designate conservative labor leaders. George Harrison and George Meany have been offered the jobs of representing the A. F. of L. on that Mediation Board . . . BROADWAY ASSOCIATION: Dist. Atty. Dewey's office now is investigating before a Grand Jury the possibility of a bribe concerning one of the liquor boards. It's an outgrowth of a night club incident . . . LORD HALIFAX: The Renee of Sarawak, a British subject whose husband has absolute rule over 200,000 natives in Borneo, is taking a job in Manhattan. She'll be associated with Charles LeMaire's new fashion place.

GRACE MOORE

EDWARD JOHNSON: Grace Moore will do two movies—one for Paramount and the second for the Hakim brothers . . . WENDELL WILKIE: William McC. Martin, retiring president of the New York Stock Exchange, told me that his colleagues haven't despaired of getting you to take the job of succeeding him . . . HERBERT HOOVER: At the Presbyterial Hospital here at least 50 per cent of the people who contributed blood to Britain have returned to make a similar contribution to the American Red Cross . . . SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER: Thank you. And I hope your readers will enjoy this column.

JOE SCHENCK: Despite your offer of a million dollars in cash as down payment, Jim Farley told friends at the White House Correspondents' Dinner on Saturday that his deal to purchase the Yankees is hotter than ever . . . HENRI HAYE: The first attack, by a distinguished Frenchman, against the Vichy regime and Marshal Petain will be made by Henri Bernstein in a series of articles . . . WALLACE P. ZACHARY: Your law clerk who just resigned, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., will leave for the South this week for a vacation before he takes up his duties with the Navy . . . JOHN GARFIELD: Margo will appear opposite you in "Fiesta in Manhattan." Warners, anticipating trouble, sent the script to the Mexican government . . . BMI: Your officials have been so excited by the ASCAP fight that they've made a mistake in sending their information returns to the Tax Dept. about payments to song writers during the year. The rubber stamp mark in each case, where they didn't know whether the tunesmith was married, read "Marital Status Unknown" . . .

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, SR.: Your son, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has just been signed as an Inquiring Reporter for a magazine. When Editor Bob Rogers asked him where he could be reached in case of emergency, the thrice married Cornelius answered: "Probably in Reno" . . . MONTY WOOLLEY: Edith Atwater, who was your leading lady in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and now touring with a road company, became ill on Saturday—a streptococcus infection . . . QUENTIN REYNOLDS: Mrs. Heywood Cox Brown wrote me to thank you through this medium for making that British relief fund in honor of her son, "The Heywood Brown Memorial Fund" . . . JOHN BARRYMORE: Your ex-father-in-law, Maurice Costello, will have a job soon in the new Abbott and Costello picture, "We're in the Navy Now." It happened this way: Lou Costello was a stunt man for MGM during the silent days. He had a bit part in "Old Kentucky" in which Helene Costello was starred. Lou, whose real name is Cristello, became enamored of her and adopted her name as his own . . . Last week he saw her father, Maurice, visiting the Universal lot and arranged for him to be signed to play the role of a naval officer . . . EQUITY: "Meet the People," the Broadway musical, is reported to be going co-operative.

COURTNEY BURR, THE PRODUCER, is keeping his promise, made to Boston newspaper-folk three months ago . . . Mr. Burr, who produced the controversial "Sailor, Beware!" heard a group of scribes lamenting the scarceness of bookings for Boston.

HE SAID HE WOULD HOLD the world premiere of his next play here . . . The announcement has been received that "The Night Before Christmas," a play written for Mr. Burr by the Perelmans (Laura and her brother, S. J.) is to open March 31.

"DON'T BLAME IT on the Girl You Didn't Get!" is the intriguing title of a new pop tune whose authorship is not far distant from the desk where this is written . . . Bill Cartan, worker on this journal, wrote the lyrics . . . Bernie Fazio composed the music, and Bernie's boss, Mickey Alpert will introduce the song over WAAB at 11:15 tonight.

GEORGE C. MACKINNON, former Boston columnist, is seriously ill at Medical Arts Center Hospital, New York, after a gall bladder operation . . . His friends may send mail to the hospital . . . Victor Mature, the Hollywood glamour boy who surprised most of the critics by giving an adult and excellent performance in "Lady in the Dark," is the hero of a new story emanating from New York.

VICTOR WAS SHOWN a swanky, but small Park ave. apartment . . . He decided not to take it, but the realtor—who is spreading the story—declares that he mistrusted his ears after Mr. Mature exclaimed: "I think the bedroom is too small! I might decide to grow a beard" . . . Virginia Pease, who played here in the same show, was busy with self-improvement until she found how easy it was to play hokey from a correspondence school . . . She sent an empty envelope.

"LOCAL GIRL MAKES GOOD" but not in Boston! . . . Collette Lyons repeated hits in shows and nightclubs is inspiration enough for a paragraph with the foregoing title . . . Until two weeks ago, Miss Lyons (of Dorchester and Quincy) was revelling in a long run at The Versailles, in New York . . . A clipping just received tells of the pretty blonde—and erstwhile red-head—wowing the customers at Detroit's smartest supper club, the Club Royale.

BUT IN THE TWO YEARS since Collette played here in George White's "Scandals," (to considerable acclaim) she has been unable to get a booking in a Boston night club . . . Not that Miss Lyons is enjoying any prolonged enforced layoffs . . . But she would like to play her hometown, and is quite frank about it. (Perhaps that's the trouble.)

IF REP. GEORGE HOLDEN TINKHAM would like to see the original of a piece of sculpture he picked up in old Vienna, he might visit the Latin Quarter . . . The lady who did the posing is among the current attractions, but—because so many of the bearded solons' friends have seen the artwork—she shall remain nameless.

MACK CLARK HAS WRITTEN a "lament" which he calls "That's All, Brother" . . . It is too long, and not quite good enough, to publish, but the last line of all the stanzas will give you an idea . . . The line is:

COLLETTE LYONS

Local Girl Makes Good—Away From Home

"He's the brother of the great Buddy Clark" . . . A conga line on skates is going very big at the Rockefeller Center ice rink.

JIMMY DORSEY'S BAND will be a Ritz Roof booking . . . Ray Noble was to have opened the season at The Roof—and he may yet—but a slight hitch has developed due to the need of cancelling a previous engagement . . . Al Taxler is making an effort to assemble the original Theatrical Club orchestra, the first "hot" band to rate as a real attraction when "swing"—and what has happened to "swing"?—came back seven or eight years ago . . . Bobby Hackett was the leader . . . He's at the Versailles now.

Hollywood Today

GETS A BID FROM THE SHUBERTS

By Louella O. Parsons

Carole Landis

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 The Shuberts want Carole Landis for their Broadway show, "Blondes Are No Headache," and if Carole can persuade Darryl Zanuck to let her have a fling on the stage she'll travel to Broadway. The Landis gal, whose finger has earned her so much publicity as did Dietrich's famous underpinnings, wants to prove she can act before the footlights. She was in a play here about a year ago called "Once Upon a Night," and it was a terrible flop. The critics didn't hand Carole much as an actress either—and that's why she wants to make them eat their words. "Blondes Are No Headache" is by Stevens Taylor and if she gets an okay Carole hires herself east right after Miami.

ANN SHERIDAN

ANN SHERIDAN was on hand to encourage her. Bette and her bridegroom, Arthur Farnsworth, who were with Mary Astor and Manuel Del Campo, leave tonight for Sugar Hill, New Hampshire for a month's vacation.

Red Skelton really brought down the house with his imitations of the way Eddie Robinson, Jimmie Cagney and Gene Autry die in movies. As an entertainer Red has few equals.

Lyndell Peck, once wed to Janet Gaynor, underwent an operation for goiter in San Francisco today; Milton Berle is building a new house in Brentwood and apparently he intends to live here; David Butler has been playing host to Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who has many friends in Hollywood.

FRANK LLOYD has just agreed to pay $50,000 to Houston Branch when his "Riverlady" is published. Lloyd bought just a brief synopsis with the understanding that Branch would bring out his novel by next spring. This is just another example of the really big money Hollywood is plunking down to get good screen stories. Frankly, I have been amused at the criticisms that Hollywood honored everyone but the authors of this year's Academy Award winners, "Rebecca," "Philadelphia Story" and "Kitty Foyle."

If you ask me, paying out $150,000 for "For Whom the Bell Tolls," $185,000 for "Lady in the Dark," over $50,000 for "Mr. Skeffington," $50,000 for "Benjamin Blake" and other small fortunes, isn't ignoring the authors.

But to get back to "River Lady," it's a Mississippi gambling boat story with all the color of the early days, and Frank will direct and produce it for his Mayfair productions released through Universal.

THE OVATION given Virginia O'Brien at the screen actors ball when she sang "Sleep, My Baby," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" in her own peculiar style, was terrific. The applause fairly shook the Coconut Grove, bearing out my contention that this girl, who was with me on my personal appearance tour last year, is in a class by herself.

IT'S THE REAL trouper's creed that "the show must go on" and so Katharine De Mille, whose little boy, Christopher Quinn, was so tragically drowned Sunday, is returning to work at Para. She was set for one of the top roles in "Aloma of the South Seas" with Dorothy Lamour—in fact, she was at the studio having fittings when she learned word of the tragedy.

BLONDIE

WHATEVER she may say to the contrary, Myra Heywood has lost her first fine careless passion for other people's guest rooms. The most satiny down comfort, the most artfully wrapped guest soap won't lure her for long from her own solidly comfortable home—and for this the young George Woods deserve a medal apiece and all the credit.

Of all problem guests who ever left her hostess with incipient nervous breakdown as a parting gift, Myra was the worst. The advent of Myra in any home spell trouble. She was all that a hostess hated rolled into one.

She was a tireless servant-chaser, a capacious eater, a born "dribbler" if two amusements offered, and capable of doing slowly silent, and sitting like a good George light bulb at a sparkling dinner party while the hostess faded in impotent inward fury.

As though this were not enough, she had a moral aversion to stirring up trouble in others' families. Any Myra had seen a young woman with the Freshwater little Phyllis Englewood run away from home and joined a third-rate theatrical troupe.

And no sooner was the ink dry on Myra's scrawled signature in the Crawford's guest book than Mrs. Crawford turned on her husband and told him how Myra had opened her eyes. A thousand a year was a disgraceful dress allowance, and it did not matter what he could afford, if he didn't give her more she would walk out on him.

READY FOR WORST

Yet "daring Myra" of the green eyes and snake black hair was invited everywhere, because she had had the protective good sense to assure Bill Heywood, socially prominent and one of the best men that walked the earth. People decided they would endure anything rather than hurt Bill Heywood's feelings. So Bill blundered good humoredly on with the mistaken idea that Myra was as popular as she was good to look at, and Myra continued to reap her own malignant form of amusement.

MYRA, a born trouble-maker and in her own opinion, quite a fit.

FRAN, Myra's hostess who longs to get rid of Myra.

GEORGE, Fran's obliging husband.

always Bill to consider."

Fran forgot her dignity long enough to fling her arms around George's neck.

"There, there, little squirrel," he nibbled at her ear absently. "We've got to think of something to speed up their departure decently."

"Oh! George, what a relief to talk to you," Fran gurgled. "Who would have guessed Myra could be so awful. The way she trails after you in the evenings in film star negligees . . . and when I meet her sweeping out of her room she never bats an eyelash, just says she's got to find a doctor."

"Well, don't worry your pretty head, I'll think of something," said George.

Indoors she found Myra presid-

George . . . but she's spreading the most ridiculous rumors, and I'm not going to take any risks. If I can't get rid of her quickly the chances are that people won't forget them."

The thought of the letter helped during the next few days. Fran smiled her way through a variety of situations. With sheer feminine intuition she got into her car and drove . . . and found Myra "stranded" with George on a lonely road one night. She turned a deaf ear to all Myra's attempts to get drama out of the situation and didn't even accuse her of having emptied the petrol tank.

A GUILTY HUSBAND?

But as in marriage it is the little things that count . . . it was a little thing that got Fran down. On her way to the kitchen to consult the cook she was nearly knocked over by the cellar door bursting open . . . and then rendered speechless by the sudden appearance of George and Myra. George covered with lipstick from brow to chin, and Myra with a cobweb worn artistically in her hair.

"Why, Fran, darling. How long have you been here?" Myra gave a slight scream, and rolled her eyes in obvious anguish.

Fran could only give an inco-

forgive you."

The shock hadn't worn off by the next day as Myra pounced on the invitation from Fran's sister with ill concealed relief . . . She had to go at once . . . Bill had to go . . . The house was turned upside down in a whirlwind of packing . . . and in less than an hour, they had departed.

"Well, that's that," said George. "Yes, that's that," said Fran, trying to keep her voice from shivering. "If I hadn't written to my sister . . . she couldn't go on, she felt too miserable."

"Oh! I don't know," said George amiably. "They might have left anyway. Look honey, I want to show you something in the cellar."

"The cellar?" Fran followed in a daze, down the cold stone stairs.

"There," said George triumphantly.

"But I don't see," Fran stared at row after row of cans or tins upon tins.

"I just brought Myra down here," chorried George, "and said you'd been buying all this stuff in a day, down the cold stone stairs. What did she think you were up to. Talk about auto-suggestion . . . she nearly fainted . . . and then she grabbed me and kissed me and was so overcome with gratitude to wherever she found it.

That was before she went to stay with Fran and George Wood. The Woods knew from hearsay what to expect, but they were confident that they could handle the situation. George and Fran were the "ideal couple" of Humple-on-Hudson. Fran held down a streamlined career in advertising and had a couple of children like fluffy chicks tucked into the nursery under a competent nanny. George was in the aviation industry with Bill Heywood, and it was to work out a business deal at greater leisure that the Heywoods were asked to stay for a week or two.

Then arrival was the scene of pleasant rejoicings, corks popped and compliments sped through the air . . . so that it said a lot for Myra's peculiar talents as a "difficult" guest that only four days had passed when Fran Wood found herself at the end of her tether.

"I can't help it, George, business or no business, Myra has got to go . . . I can't stand it a day longer!"

Fran could have strangled Myra—why she had even been driven into the garage like a thief to see George alone, and here she was feeling unable to be frank with him . . . for you couldn't say "Myra's making a dead end for you . . . everybody's talking about it . . . and I'm terribly afraid she may succeed" . . . or could you?

There was a moment's silence while he tinkered with the battery then George's chuckle, deep and satisfying. "I know, honey. Our marriage seems to be a red rag to Myra. As far as I'm concerned she's just a joke, but I'm not going to have you put out, Fran. I guess the folks have been talking about the crazy way she grabs hold of me in public and blinks her eyes like traffic lights. I'd have done something sooner, but there's

Piles--Get Relief Now

Millions of sufferers in the last 30 years have found a way to get quick relief from the itching and smarting of piles. They use a delightful, cooling, soothing and astringent formula—Peterson's Ointment. No wonder one sufferer wrote, "The itching and smarting stopped, and I slept all night. Peterson's Ointment is marvelous." 35c a box, all druggists, 60c in tube with applicator. Money back if not delighted.

"Why, Fran, darling. How long have you been here?" Myra gave a slight scream, and rolled her eyes in obvious anguish.

ing over the tea cups for a group of friends. As she parted the curtains she heard George's name mentioned. "What's that about George?" Fran smiled, crossing the room.

"Why! Fran," Myra dropped a tea spoon with a noisy clatter . . . "Darling, how long have you been here?" she fluttered her eyelashes with a great display of confusion. "I don't lurk behind curtains," said Fran lightly. "Thank you my dear." She ousted Myra politely from behind the teapot.

MYRA DROPS HINTS But it was Myra who dominated the little group looking as distraught and knowing as her great green eyes would allow.

"Overcasting as usual," thought Fran furiously. She was disgusted with her friends for being impressed by the show. There they sat looking uncomfortable because after a few subtle hints they believed firmly that George and she were drifting apart.

Why were they in such a hurry to believe Myra's forebodings? It was positively ghoulish . . . Fran knew that Myra didn't even want George. She just wanted to give their marriage a fatal push, so that she could say later on: "My dear, I saw it all when I was staying there."

As soon as tea was over Fran made a beeline for her bedroom and wrote a long letter to her married sister in an adjoining state. "So you see," she finished, "if you can lure her away to stay at your place with glowing promises of entertainment . . . I'll be so and grateful. It isn't because of herent gasp and run through the kitchen out into the yard, into the fresh air. Why the cellar?" she thought confusedly. There was no earthly reason why George should take Myra down there unless he really wanted to be alone with her. Could George be falling . . . Or rather had he fallen already? Fran realized that she was crying dearly, she couldn't get George's expression out of her head. He had looked so utterly taken aback and guilty.

Dinner that night began in a frigid manner. Only Bill talked, quite unaware of any tension. "Can he see anything through those horn rimmed glasses of his?" Fran thought. "Can't he see what his wife is up to?" . . . Then it happened! . . . Myra, who had been bent with the sweet, took a couple of mouthfuls . . . then her chair went crashing over as she sprang to her feet. "Bill! Bill! I've been poisoned!"

"But how ridiculous," Fran plunged a fork into the pie and tasted a portion. A dreadful sour taste assailed her. . . . Baking soda! Not just a little too much, but masses too much! . . . In the confusion that followed George took charge. Myra was pulled sobbing from her bedroom and the four of them made a descent on the kitchen.

MYRA DEPARTS

"So simple, see," George demonstrated in the pantry. "The lid of the baking soda can and it obviously crashed into the flour bin. . . . Probably the slamming of the door did the trick. Elementary, my dear Watson! Alright, cook, we be warned in time."

"But George Wood! She'll be going round the country saying 'I attempted to poison her.'"

"Oh! no she won't. You see I hauled them both into the pantry. She saw for herself the baking soda can I'd dropped into the flour bin. But the doubt will always remain at the back of her mind, as to what you might have attempted if she'd tried you any further. Fantastic of course, but not to anyone of Myra's overdramatic makeup. From now on that woman will watch her step."

"Oh! George you're wonderful." Fran sat down wearily on the roach cans. "Tell me, however did you think of all this?"

"Education, honey," said George amiably. "Something I learned at junior high. If ever a woman was poison it was Myra . . . and for some poisons the only antidote is another poison."

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

ALTHOUGH the official opening is still a week away, the Boston branch of Bundles for Britain . . . on Boylston st. next to the Arlington Church . . . is already humming with activity.

Here warm clothing is being collected and sorted, and wool and knitting instructions dispensed, while plans go on for the Open House which will formally open the branch on next Wednesday.

Mrs. Wales Latham, national president of Bundles for Britain, and the Dutches of Leinster will be guests of honor, coming up from Gotham for the occasion . . . and will speak briefly on their work at 4 p. m.

Hours for the Open House are from 11 to 1, and from 3 to 6 . . . with bouillon served in the morning and coffee in the afternoon . . . and a welcome mat out for all.

Invitations are being sent to officers of the various B. for B. branches, and of other war relief agencies . . . but the public is cordially bidden to attend and urged to help in the cause.

Mrs. Francis G. Shaw heads the Boston group with Mrs. Jasper Whiting as vice-chairman . . . Mrs. Stanwood G. Wellington is invitation chairman, and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus heads the pourers.

Other committees are headed by Mrs. Sidney Winslow, Mrs. Ernest Lovering, Jr., Allen Forbes, Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, and Mrs. A. L. West Movius.

Assisting them is a large committee including Mrs. Margot Brown, Mrs. Edward Cullen, Mrs. Harold Dunham, Mrs. Chester B. Kerr, Mrs. Robert G. Paine, Nancy Scott, Mrs. John W. Scott, Mrs. Preston T. Stephenson, Mrs. Joseph F. Wogan and Mrs. Richard Ward.

Seen at 'Your Loving Son'

THE ANTICS of modern parents and the precocity of their adolescent young held the attention of the First Nighters this week, when Frankie Thomas and Charita Bauer . . . two adolescent stars, took all the honors at the Plymouth Theater in "Your Loving Son."

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Donovan . . . just back from a month in Florida . . . motored up from Swampscott for the opening . . . Mrs. Donovan wore a silver fox coat over a smart red-white-and-blue ensemble . . . blue skirt, white top and red military jacket.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kern, also back from Palm Beach, were in the audience . . . Mrs. Kern with a deep golden tan and wearing a stunning tropical print gown.

In a box were Jean Roberts and Herbert Tuckerman of the young set . . . Jean wore pale pink satin with a black velvet bow in her blonde locks . . . like many patrons, they preferred not to brave the blasts in the lobby between acts, but sat on the stairs and chatted.

Elizabeth Hollis to Be Bride

ON THE ORANGE-BLOSSOM calendar this month is the wedding of Elizabeth Hollis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hollis, who will wed Miller Deane Richmond of Hingham . . . which is also Elizabeth's home town . . . on March 29.

A four o'clock ceremony it will be, in the Old Ship Church in Hingham, with a reception at the South Shore Country Club . . . after which the honeymooners will be in Florida until New England has thawed.

Elizabeth will have Mary Hastings of Beacon st. as maid of honor . . . her other attendants will be Mrs. Frank Hall, Mrs. George Wightman and Mrs. Ellison Whitney of Hingham and Mrs. Martin Donahoe of Milburn, N. J.

Collamore Richmond will be his brother's best man . . . and the corps of ushers includes John R. Hollis of Boston, Robert P. Bainbridge and William Canterbury of Hingham, and Bryant Harroun of Summit, N. J.

BETSY DAY and Lucy Pope . . . two of the clever skaters who will perform in the Boston Skating Club Carnival which opens tomorrow evening at the club's rink on Soldiers Field rd. . . hang over the rail to watch one of the colorful numbers in dress rehearsal.

Rev. Connolly Will Lecture

On next Monday at the Copley Plaza, Rev. Terence L. Connolly, S. J., will give an illustrated lecture in color, "Saint Joan of Arc and France," sponsored by the Thompson Associates.

Baked Beans With Variety

By MARTHA LEE

ALTHOUGH THE CALENDAR tells us that spring is approaching, balmy days are yet to be seen. Most of us are glad to hold fast to the fur coat and to the idea of serving and eating hot, substantial meals during the blustery month of March.

Love

Husband Has Love Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a married man, in love with a married woman 20 years younger, and she loves me. We met six years ago when we were both lonely because of neglect.

My wife knows that I have had someone and she won't let me out of her sight and cries often. My sweetheart said she is sorry for my wife and she could not see me again. She thinks that if we love each other we can wait and some day it would come out all right.

I never was in love before and I feel that I will die, living like this. I can't get my mind on anything else. Do you think my sweetheart is right in not believing in divorce in my case? My wife had been around before we were married, and has never wanted for a thing. Is it right to have to live like this?

NEGLIGENT HUSBAND
Please do not think me cynical when I quote Shakespeare's "Men have died and worms have eaten them—but not for love." You haven't told me enough about yourself.

You tell me your wife does not want to let you out of her sight. This does not quite click with your signature of "Neglected Husband." Your sweetheart is unquestionably of a fine type in not wishing to make your wife unhappy and doubtless has her own reasons for taking the attitude she does.

Husband Stealer

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

There is a married woman who is or imagines herself in love with my husband. Somehow she has the idea that he is going to be her second husband.

We have always been friends until she started saying that my husband was going to be her second husband, at my home and in public. I've pondered as to whether this concerns me to the point where I should do something about it. My husband is really wonderful to me, but what can I do to put an end to such a situation? Please suggest something to help me settle this matter.

EVELYN.
Unless your husband is a sheep-like type who allows himself to be driven where the sheep dog pleases, he will stop, look and listen and avoid the future tactics of this high-minded woman who has no concern as for the show she is putting on for the bystander.

Common sense would indicate that you drop her immediately, not only in the interests of your own happiness, but to save your husband from one who believes in giving no quarter.

One of the most appealing dishes we know of on a cold, wintry evening is a pot of baked beans. Even though beans are a most economical food, there is truly a treasure of nourishment and satisfaction in every plateful. Beans are one of the "traditional" foods, and most homemakers have a favorite method of baking them handed down from their mothers or grandmothers. But with the cost of fuel or heating modern ranges today, long cooking methods are not economical.

CANNED BAKED BEANS

That is why so many homemakers have resorted to buying baked beans in a can. Many modern packers have really captured all the good, old fashioned flavor of the beans that grandmother used to bake for many hours in the oven. And they've added variety, too, making it possible to buy several kinds of beans, all ready prepared with different sauces. And although we often think longingly of foods that grandmother cooked, we should realize that we are steps ahead of her today in many ways.

But no matter how popular any food is it can't stand constant repetition and still keep in favor with every member of the family. In the case of beans it is probably true that the favorite method of serving is emptying a can into a casserole and heating in the oven. But there are many other recipes where the beans can be used to excellent advantage.

For instance, a half green pepper, sliced, and a cup (½ lb.) of grated American cheese combined in a casserole with a can of baked beans, Boston style, and baked in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. for 45 minutes, makes a Baked Bean Rabbit that wins friends immediately.

Another suggestion is Baked Beans, creole style, in which another style of beans is used and combined with other vegetable to make a perfectly delicious dish.

BAKED BEANS, CREOLE STYLE

3 slices bacon
½ cup (1 medium) chopped onion
½ cup (1 medium) finely chopped green pepper
1 medium (18 oz.) can oven baked beans, vegetarian style
Salt
1 cup canned or stewed tomatoes
1 tsp. sugar
Fry the bacon until crisp, then break into small pieces. Brown the onion and pepper slightly in the bacon fat. Combine the bacon with the vegetables. Place in alternate layers in a casserole with the beans. Sprinkle each layer of bacon and vegetable mixture lightly with salt. Pour the tomatoes over the top; sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a hot oven (425 deg. F.) about 30 minutes, or until the tomatoes thicken. Makes five servings.

COMBINATION BAKED BEAN CASSEROLE

1 medium (18-oz.) can baked beans with pork and tomato sauce
1 medium (17½-oz.) can baked red kidney beans
Tomato ketchup
3 large slices bacon
Arrange the two different kinds of beans in alternate layers in a casserole, having two layers of each. Spread over each layer a small amount of tomato ketchup. Cut the bacon slices in halves, then arrange over beans. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 35 minutes. Beans may be baked in individual bean pots. Makes 6 servings.
Note: For variation, add a layer or so of drained whole kernel corn.

BAKED BEANS OVER BERMUDA ONIONS

Boiled Bermuda onions
Ketchup butter sauce
Baked beans, any style, heated
Cut thin slices from top of boiled Bermuda onions. Cut tops crisscross fashion. Top with ketchup butter sauce, then top with a generous serving of baked beans.

KETCHUP BUTTER SAUCE

Tomato ketchup
Butter
Combine equal proportions of tomato ketchup and butter. Heat, then serve over cooked vegetables. Use two tablespoons for each serving.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELISE ROBINSON

MY FRIEND just died. He was a barkeep. But he had been many other things besides. Indeed, I doubt if there was a trade he had not dabbled in, for he was a born adventurer at heart.

Dark, smiling, lolling against a sunny wall on his very elegant legs, punctuating his husky, laughing discourse with his tapering, powerful hands . . . and punctuating your favorite hokey with a flash of his handsome black eyes . . . he was the very symbol of the Old West which he so loved and had claimed as his own.

His love of life—of frank, easy-going Western life, in particular—was the thing you felt first and last in him. You could not come near him without being warmed by it. Of all the men I have known—wise and foolish, strong and weak—he revelled in life most deeply. He did not try to analyze it or pass judgment upon it. He took it as simply as a child, as a great and glorious gift, a cause for everlasting rejoicing.

I HAVE SEEN him stand over a bubbling pot of polenta, that Italian dish of boiled corn meal with mushroom sauce which puts to shame the greatest French culinary masterpiece. All day the meal and the sauce must simmer if they are to be brought to perfection. And all day my friend would bend above the fragrant steam, laughing, rejoicing, as if at a fiesta . . . feeling to the full the savor of that simple incident.

The fragrance and heartiness of a dish of polenta . . . the tawny flight of a young buck through the chaparral . . . the burning blue of a California sky above bronzed oaks . . . the clotted honey of the first, fresh figs . . . the very smell and feel of the red, mountain soil—all these he loved in every portion and made a part of his own self. Never have I seen a human who felt the whole of life so deeply. Yet, as I've said, his greatest joy lay in human beings.

There was no profit motive in that joy. Of all he earned, in his widely varied projects, he must have given even more for the sake of a smile . . . or as a comfort to grief. He had an uncanny instinct that way. THEY SAY he was a barkeep—and alcohol, some people say, is poison. But there's more deadly poison than ever came across a bar, and that's the poison of unkindliness.

And never did I see a drop of that in anything he dealt. He chuckled over human cesslessness, including his own and yours, but never did his word stab any man in the back. And always there lay welcome in his hands and heart for any lonely stranger who came by his way.

I know not what the moralists may say. I only know the world is cold today because my friend has gone . . . And I'll walk humbler all my life, for having known his courage and his unflinching kindness.

You Can Be Beautiful

A Perfume for Spring

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU DON'T need to be reminded that a new perfume in springtime is as much a part of your plans as a new hat . . . but you may like to be reminded that there exists a perfume which has that "certain something" springtime demands . . . it has the power of attraction . . . and no less an authority than the Duchess of Windsor has backed up that claim.

It seems that this perfume was given her by the Duke . . . It is called a "secret" by its famous Parisian creator . . . the Duchess after using it always referred to it as her own secret . . . so . . . you might learn one little lesson about her illimitable charm . . . by using a fragrance she adores!

Though the perfume is $1.50 a dram, its sponsors have decided to reintroduce it to Boston by giving with it a smart beige faille purse kit . . . ready to go in your new spring handbag! Which means, actually, that the beige kit is included quite without charge to you!

This is the regulation size of purse kit, about six and a half by four inches . . . nicely made with a gathered "ruch" under the flap, so you can tuck in compacts, lipsticks, keys, cigarette lighters almost ad infinitum! The silk beige faille is printed in white . . . and since this is THE accessory color of spring, you'll be matching something to it, hat, gloves, shoes or whatever.

Inside there are several hand pocket arrangements, and tucked into one of them is that dram bottle of fragrance . . . your always ready source of allure . . . ready to be dabbed on your ear lobes or brushed on your temples . . . to make someone you're with really take notice.

If you'd like shopping information on this gift of a faille purse kit with a dram of intriguing French perfume, all for the regular price of $1.50, phone Arline Gould, LI-Berty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Applying for a Job by Letter

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am not yet graduated from high school, but I am writing a letter of application, for commercial work, to a certain firm. Would you kindly advise me how to word it, letting the firm know I am not yet graduated from high school?

GRACE

In writing such an application you would have to emphasize the details of your education and of your qualifications, since there would be no details of experience. Set forth, definitely and concisely, the details of your education, especially as they apply to the requirements of the position for which you are applying. Give your age, your nationality, and your religion. Set forth special qualifications that you may have that are pertinent of such a position; your willingness to work for instance, your honesty, your habit of punctuality, your sense of responsibility, your sense of co-operation.

The main thing is to write your letter so convincingly that it will effect an interview. If you think that letters of recommendation will help with this, you might collect and send some. The instructors in your classes, the principal of your school, will undoubtedly be willing to give you letters about your work, if your grades warrant these.

Giving a Tip

By MRS. BEECKMAN

It's a heart-warming experience to observe the way polite people give tips.

Being considerate human beings themselves, they show by their grace that they appreciate the fact that the person who has served them—waiter or waitress, bell boy, taxicab driver, manicurist—is also a human being, and like all human beings, appreciates a friendly smile and courteous "Thank you." So these pleasant tip-givers always accompany their dime or quarter with a good word of appreciation of the service.

In reverse, it's a grim experience to observe the ill-bred person giving his or her tip, Nary a smile or

Pinafores For British

Next Monday will be Pinafore Day for the Linen and Cotton for Britain committee, headed by Mrs. Hayward Parker Whittington, Mrs. John Gorham Palfrey and Hilda W. Williams.

A large case packed with gay pinafores of printed linen and cotton for children, as well as hair ribbons, diapers and children's handkerchiefs, is the goal for a Easter gift to Britain's children.

These things are to be added to the sheets and pillow cases which the committee is gathering and sending to the embattled British. They are to go to a children's home outside London, and contributions are being received at the headquarters at 561 Boylston st.

Among those working on the project are Mrs. W. D. Bigelow Mrs. John H. Blodgett, Margaret T. Buckley, Mrs. Elizabeth Carey, Annette Clark, Mrs. E. Dickinson, Mrs. E. Dinmore, Eleanor F. Fraser, Mrs. B. F. Goodrich, Mrs. Francis C. Hall, Mrs. Lucille Perry Hall, Mrs. E. H. Harding, Mrs. Sydney Harwood, Mrs. William Hedge, Mrs. Frederick Holder, Lucy Inglis, Mrs. Norris F. LaCroix and Mrs. H. S. Macomber.

Also on the committee are Claire Miller, Mrs. Samuel Minter, Mrs. Edward F. Muldowney, Mrs. Ralph L. Pope, Mary Reardon, Mrs. John Parker Samuels, Mrs. Alexander Singleton, Eleanor F. Somerby, Mrs. Horace H. Soule, Mrs. Robert Cushing Terry, Mrs. William C. Thomas, Edith Ward, Mrs. Richard P. Waters and Mrs. Moses Williams.

a "Thank you" from the grumpy attitude is obviously, "She's a snob." But she? She's expected to do this for me." Or, even more churlishly, "He's glad enough to get the ten cents. Why should I take the trouble to thank him as well?"

That gracious interchange of "Thank you" from the person serving and from the person served is one of life's amenities, honored by all polite people.

Here's the idea:

"Politeness is the flower of humanity. He who is not polite enough is not human enough."

Hears Nazi Exile's Talk

DR. HERBERT GEZORK, formerly executive secretary of the German Baptist Youth Movement under Hitler, gave a stirring and thought-provoking talk to the Professional Women's Club at their monthly luncheon meeting at the Hotel Statler yesterday.

Now a faculty member of Wellesley College and of Andover-Newton Theological Seminary, Dr. Gezork is exiled from his native land because of his anti-Nazi convictions.

In his lecture he warned the members that it is not enough they are determined to denounce Hitlerism, but that we must combat the overwhelming loyalty of the Nazi youth with an equally vigorous faith in democracy.

He pointed out that the program of Nazism is directed toward bringing all possible opponents of Hitler's program, and inculturing in all children an unquestioning loyalty and willingness to sacrifice anything, even their lives, to further world domination of the German people.

"Higher education is denied to all except the physically perfect, mentally able and politically dependable," he said.

"Every boy at the age of nine enters the Hitler Youth Movement. From then on he is taught three ideals . . . discipline, loyalty and courage."

"We know that the philosophy they are taught is to serve three years, without pay, in labor camps or in Norm Troops, that I have seen them creep when rejected for a physical disability."

Other speakers at the luncheon were Prof. Arthur Norman Holcombe, who discussed the problem of Christian colleges in China, and Mrs. Arthur W. Hartt, secretary of the American Bureau for Medical Aid to China.

Hon. Frederick W. Cook discussed current legislation, and Sigmond Arnold Lavine talked on Gilbert and Sullivan. Sumita Devi, a native of Calcutta, India, and a former pupil of Rabindranath Tagore, spoke on Hindu culture.

Foxx Really a Credit To National Pastime

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 19—It was the fanning hour and talk switched to pitching.

Two of the young Sox pitchers came out of the hotel, hopped into an automobile and whisked away down town.

JIMMY FOXX

"Look at them," snorted one veteran. "Just going to the postoffice and too lazy to walk. Both got good stuff, too, and ought to win a lot of games. But they don't walk enough and they don't work enough."

"Nothing like Bob Feller," remarked another. "There's a kid who made himself a star in a couple of years just by working on his weak points."

"You're right," chimed in Mike Ryba. "I caught Feller on an exhibition tour in the fall of '37, and all he had was a fast one and no control. But since then he has developed a curve ball, and not only has learned to control his fast ball but the curve as well."

"Yes," Charlie Wagner chimed in, "and he's still the same swell kid he was when he broke in. I knew him when he was so bashful he didn't even dare to say 'Hello' to anyone. And all the success he's had hasn't changed him a bit."

"You know," Charlie warmed up, "I love that in a fellow. Take Jimmie Foxx, for instance. There's a superstar who's never changed. Never think he ever got a base hit the way he goes about his business."

And isn't Charlie right? There are so many selfish fellows in this world that it really is refreshing to meet a fellow of the Feller-Foxx-Walters type.

Hadn't Backstopped for Five Years

Foxx is a shining example of unselfishness, on the field and off. Last summer, for instance, when the Sox were stuck for catching with Gene Demuth hurt, Jimmie volunteered to go behind the plate and help out.

It was a most unselfish gesture, because catching in the dog days of August isn't conducive to baseball longevity or to batting prosperity. And Foxx hadn't caught a game in five years when he made the shift.

Foxx has had his ups and downs in the past couple of years, but his sunny disposition has never changed. Back in 1937, the year after he first came to Boston, his batting dropped from .338 to .285.

"Connie Mack has sold us a lemon," Boston chortled, and Foxx's baseball chitturles were prepared. He said nothing, but came back in 1938 to lead the league in hitting with .349 and was voted the Most Valuable Player Award.

He had another great year in '39, hitting .360 and leading the league in home runs with 35. But last year he took a second nose dive, this time to .297, and although he knocked in 119 runs his work didn't satisfy some of the critics.

"If they believe what they write," Jimmie would say, "it's all right with me. I just want them to be honest."

Here's a story typical of Jimmie Foxx. Last summer one of his most severe newspaper critics took a youngster to the dugout to have the kid's picture taken with one of the other Sox headliners.

The other fellow couldn't be bothered and the young boy was heart-

LEAFS SCOUTED BRIUNS FOR PLAYOFFS' OPENER

LAST MINUTE—LAST GOAL—LAST GAME—Mel Hill (No. 11) after drawing Johnny Mowers out of the nets with just eight seconds of play remaining, banged home the Bruins' fourth goal to help beat the Wings, 4-1, in the last N. H. L. regularly scheduled game of the year at the Garden last night.

Winding up their season with the most amazing record in hockey history—one defeat in their last 32 starts—the Bruins now settle down to again prove their superiority by opening a best four out of seven series with the Toronto Maple Leafs at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Just tying their way to a soft 4-1 curtain dopper against the Detroit Red Wings, the Bruins rest today before taking the ice to win their third Stanley Cup in 13 years and their second in three years.

At full strength, these terrific Bruins who captured their fourth successive National Hockey League championship, a feat never before accomplished, and who took the Prince of Wales Trophy for the 10th time, will be a decided favorite over the Leafs.

INJURY RIDDLED

Those Leafs, hailed as the wonder team of the year, got away to a flying start but faltered badly due to injuries. Entering the playoffs the Leafs are far from full strength, but they still possess enough power to warrant serious consideration.

Syl Apps, one of the greatest centers of all time who has been out of action for over two weeks with twisted knee ligaments, is not expected to play the first two games, and Bingo Kampman, a rough, tough defenseman, is also a doubtful starter until the third clash which will be at Toronto next Tuesday night.

The reports fresh from the University Club where the Leafs have been quarantined since yesterday day that Hank Goldup, a high scoring

BRODA WINS VEZINA CUP

These talks of war, though, deceive nobody. The Leafs may be weakened but they're still loaded with manpower and the best the Bruins could do against this shattered outfit was a scoreless tie and a one goal triumph in their last two meetings.

As a matter of fact those Leafs sat in on the finals with the Red Wings last night and were far from worried—that is everybody except a gent named Turk Broda.

The Bruins had to beat Detroit's Johnny Mowers twice for Broda to win the Vezina Trophy for having the fewest goals scored against him. When Bill Cowley hit one home 54 seconds after the game started he only reduced a bit. Then after a scoreless second session, Cowley hit the jack pot again at 5:02 in the third period and Mr. B promptly quit his work.

COWLEY WANTS 10%

He jumped up, let out a war howl, crushed his green fedora and then started ducking as his well wishing teammates started to pum-pum him with congratulations. And those wishes were not all Broda got—he received a bonus of $1000 for grabbing the trophy.

Cowley's only comment was: "That Broda ought to cut in for ten per cent anyway."

But Mr. Cowley has no complaint for he had himself quite a night.

He outsmarted Mowers in his initial effort by getting the Detroit goalie to leave his corner to cover for a possible pass to Conacher. Instead Cowley shot and Mowers stopped the plug with his gloved hand but couldn't hold it. It was an error for Johnny and a goal for Cowley.

GRAB OFF GIFTS

William then notched his second of the night and 17th of the year when he teamed with Wiseman and Conacher in a beautifully re-broken. But Jimmie jumped into the breach, picked up the kid, put him on his knee, posed with him and sent him away grinning.

Courteous to Booster and Knocker

Just before the infielders and outfielders were due to report this morning Foxie drove over from St. Pete to play a game of golf with Joe Cronin. He wasn't in uniform, but the hundreds of winter tourists at the ball park mobbed him.

It isn't autographs so much down here as it is camera fiends, most of them with movie cameras at that.

Foxie posed obligingly for the greater part of an hour in the broiling sun, hat off and on, in the sun and out. And not one of those pictures was to appear in a newspaper!

After the ordeal was over he came over to the bench where the reporters had ducked out of the sun and he greeted each one, booster and knocker alike, just like his dearest friend.

His talk of his golf course, where he hasn't been doing too well, or not once did he complain; he talked of his youngster, Bobby, who was recuperating from an automobile accident; he stayed as long as the boys wanted him.

He's the same all season long, too, and even when he is suffering with the sinus one never hears him complain.

He's courteous to every one he meets, friend and stranger alike, children and old folks. Never once have we seen him refuse a reasonable request of anybody.

He's a credit to the game, is Jimmie Foxie, and a fellow can't help rooting for him to come back this year just as strongly as he did in 1938 when he was voted the most valuable player in the American League.

'HOMERS' WIN IN HOCKEY'S LITTLE SERIES

By the Associated Press

The American Hockey League playoffs lost little time falling into the well-worn pattern which gives the advantage to the team playing at home.

Last night in the first two games of the post season series, the "home edge" held good, although both counts went into overtime, with the Providence Reds, defending champions, turning back Cleveland's Barons, 4-1 and the Hershey Bears nosing out the New Haven Eagles, 2-1.

It had been announced that the Springfield Indians would meet the Pittsburgh Hornets last night also, but the Indians learned on arrival in the Snooky City that the game would be played tonight.

THREE GOALS IN OVERTIME

John Harris, owner of the Hornets, said a "misunderstanding" had led to President Maurice Podoloff's announcement that the series would start Tuesday. The clash of the two third place teams in a two-out-of-three series in a re-enactment of the 1939-1940 playoffs, in which the Hornets lost the first game at Springfield, but won the next two at home.

The Reds put in three goals in the overtime session to take the lead in the first-place series with the Barons.

Hub Wilson opened the scoring for Providence in the 18th minute of play, on passes from Hugh Gustafson and George Johnston, but Les Cunningham, leading scorer of the league, came back late in the third period to send the game into overtime. Thirty-one seconds after the sides faced off for the extra session, Wilson drove in the deciding goal. Two more by Johnston and Normie Mann put the issue beyond all doubt.

NEAR RIOT AT HERSHEY

The Reds and Barons, engaged in a best four out of seven series, will clash at Providence again tomorrow night.

A burnt out light bulb almost caused a riot at Hershey. The Red light failed to flash after Red Hamill had flipped the tying Hershey marker into the New Haven nets, unassisted and the 3000 fans who witnessed the encounter at first thought the goal was disallowed and turned the place into an uproar.

Connie Tudin sent the Eagles in to the lead less than two minutes after the opening whistle sounded, scoring on a three-man rush with Paul Drouin and Jack Cain.

The Bears broke the deadlock on Bobby Kirk's goal at 2:46 of the overtime period. It was a hard shot rifled into the net from a point midway between the Red and Blue lines.

The Bears and Eagles play the second of their three-game series tomorrow at New Haven.

LONDON, March 19 (AP)—Tommy Farr, Welsh heavyweight boxer, reported today thieves broke into his Brighton home while he was asleep and stole $17,000 worth of jewelry, trophies and gifts from friends in the United States.

American-Record Add More Prizes For Kegler Victors

When the American-Record grand candlepin bowling champions of 1941 are crowned following the forthcoming tournament classic at the Huntington Club, a fitting array of beautiful prizes will be presented them as symbols of their hard-won honors.

Added to the handsome diamond-studded gold medals of brand new design which will be awarded to every champion in the amateur division will be the very latest and finest of gold wrist watches.

These 1941 model watches will be presented the men's and women's singles and doubles champions, the mixed doubles champions, the schoolboy and schoolgirl champions and the champion of the college men's division.

In other words the winners of each of these divisions will receive both the diamond medals and the watches, too. And those diamonds are honest-to-goods diamonds, the big split for the champions and tapering off down the line.

CASH FOR MEN'S OPEN

Of course the performers in the men's division get their awards in cash, real spendable money. The amount depends entirely on the number of participants in each open division. Every cent of the entry fees in this open division is returned to the participants, with the big split for the champions and tapering off down the line.

The women's singles open bowlers will pay a much smaller entry fee than the men and the feminine champion will be rewarded with a diamond medal.

The amateur all-events champions, both man and woman, will likewise receive diamond medals—so that all-in-all every winner will be handsomely showered with lasting gifts. Later other lovely prizes will be announced.

72 ALLEYS

This year's tournament is now only a week and a half away. It officially opens at noon Saturday, March 29—just one week from next Saturday. From that moment on until midnight of Saturday, April 12, Jack Stafford's sparkling 72 alleys at the Huntington Club will resound from the crashing pins.

Once more the tournament director would like to ask all prospective participants to hurry along their entries. Time is fleeting and the lists will soon be closed. The committee is anxious that all old American-Record bowling friends be once again in the tournament ranks and just as many new ones. Rush your entry TODAY.

Like the "sterling" mark on fine silver, the name Green River on a bottle of whiskey signifies surety of outstanding quality. Folks found this so half a century ago. You'll find it so when you buy a bottle today.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 19—There were only three games played with major league clubs at Sarasota this spring, one with the Cards, March 11, one with the Reds, March 12 and one with the Giants yesterday. Games remaining on the Sarasota schedule are with Newark, today; Louisville, Sunday, March 23; Baltimore, Monday, March 24, and Kansas City, Tuesday, March 25.

Camp will be broken next Tuesday after the game with Kansas City. The Sox will play the Phillies in Miami the following day, and then follow four games in Cuba, one with a Cuban team on Thursday, and three with the Reds on Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Havana. Then a game with Rochester at Palm Beach, and the northern trek with the Reds.

Wilburn Butland, "Steamboat Bill," will be 23 years of age on March 22. Earl Johnson will be 22 on April 2. Bobby Doerr will be 23 on April 7. Jack Wilson will be 23 on April 12.

Bill Sayles, victim of a sore arm last year, has looked wonderful since he broke loose down here, and will give Manager Joe Cronin one more headache before he cuts down his pitching staff. . . . Johnny Peacock hasn't got a big league catcher's physique, nor is his throwing arm anything to brag about; but he's got an overabundance of hustle and he's a pretty sweet little hitter. . . . Mickey Harris likes to play golf. . . . Oscar Judd is a great walker. . . . Dick Newsome is partial to blue.

Frank Dasso, whose wife and infant son are in Santa Ana, Calif., near Hollywood, is terribly homesick, and Joe Cronin probably will give him a break by sending him to Hollywood in part payment for Bill Fleming. . . . Dasso pitched for Frisco last season. . . . Young ball players get so little money that three of them wrote to one veteran on the club asking would he please loan them $100 so they could get past the training season. Their pay doesn't start until the league season opens, and they are expected to tip like bonvivants. . . . Earl Johnson holds a runner on first base better than any other pitcher in the major leagues. He caught one fellow off first base the other day, and so scared another that he was dashing back to first while Johnson was pitching to the batter.

Johnny Barrett of Lowell has been unable to play for the past week because of a bruise on his heel. That will cost him whatever chance he had of sticking with the club because Stanley Spencer has been hitting the daylight out of the ball. . . . Too bad the Bees couldn't get hold of a couple of Spences. . . . This Sox outfit is full of boys who can hit the ball. Even Frankie Pylak will flirt with .300 if he's in there day in and day out. . . . Lou Finney admits to 30 but is younger looking than several of the boys who claim to be his junior. . . . Norman Brown, Earl Johnson, Al Flair and Bill Butland are slick lookers and slick dressers.

STRONG PENN STATE GYM TEAM IN TECH MEET

Penn State has entered a team of gymnasts in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic 6-6 1/2 1-6 1/2 championships, scheduled for M. I. T. next Saturday afternoon, that will give competition to the best of entries from Army, Navy, M. I. T., Princeton and Temple. This team came within two points of sharing the Eastern Intercollegiate team title, when they lost to Temple, 24-23, last week. During the season this team has won over Navy, Chicago, Minnesota, Princeton and M. I. T.

Roman Pico, Penn State's all-round ace, has clinched individual scoring for the year, the Nittany Lion star having a total of 55 points, a big advantage over his team mate, Lou Bordo and Sam Fogel of Temple; both of whom have 35 markers.

Other leading scorers in the league are Bigelow of Princeton, Blattman of Navy, Miller of M. I. T. and Szygula of Temple.

Roman Pico has set up a remarkable gymnastic record this year. His consistently good performance on the horizontal bar, parallels and rings and horse gave Penn State its best season in almost a decade. He is definitely a contender in the all-round championships in the meet at M. I. T. next Saturday. He holds a National A. A. U. rope climbing championship, but performs better on the other pieces of apparatus.

Solomon Small, a sophomore, has been pushing Pico for the all round honors. He performs excellently and should show up especially well in the event.

Lou Bordo, Penn State's third all round man, has only suffered one defeat this season on the parallel bars, while Sophomore John Teti has been a consistent point winner on the horse and parallel bars.

Penn's star tumbler, Ed Trybala, will definitely push George Szygula, National A. A. U. tumbling champion, for the intercollegiate crown.

Bowling Congress Scores Running Above Average

ST. PAUL, March 19 (AP)—Some idea of the high scoring tempo in the current American Bowling Congress tourney, of session here, can be gleaned from comparison of the 600-or-better totals shot in the first five days here and in 1940 at Detroit.

Already 86 totals of 600 average or better have been chalked up in the solo competition as against 18 in the corresponding period last year.

Last year at Detroit a score of 572 "cashed" in the lengthy $200,000 prize list, but judging from the caliber of scores here, it will take close to 600 to nab a pay check.

Minnesota booster teams will monopolize most of the tournament lanes until Friday when seasoned performers will swing into action.

High total during Tuesday's shadow minor events card was produced by Frank Follhofer, 48-year-old press feeder of St. Paul, who hit 662 in the singles to help him land fifth in the all-events with 1826.

St. Louis may furnish a haven for Joe Lewis vs Tony Musto, a refugee from Cleveland.

Connie Mack figures this year's training trip will cost the A's $30 grand, and he can't help but remember that once he trained the team in Philly and came up with $5000 profit.

Little Patty Berg, on a lecture-exhibition tour of the Southwest, is getting rave press notices. . . . Don Elser, with a fine record at St. Benedict's College last year, is angling for an eastern head coaching job for 1942.

Jockey Nick Wought, who rode Bay View in the Santa Anita, is dickering with the Louis B. Mayer stables—at $15,000 per.

Art Coh, Oakland Tribune "The sweetest of Sigma Chi" used to have all the football news, but times have changed. . . . Tom Meany has a nifty in this week's S. E. P. on Phil Rizzuto. Says all Phil has to do to become "Rookie No. 1" is to put the Yanks back together again, something old King Ruppert's money, men and brewery horses couldn't do last year. . . . Shorter Luster, Oklahoma's new coach, is going in for a batch of trick plays behind a line that will average 200 pounds, and somebody had better look out.

British Grid Star Injured As Bomber Falls

LONDON, March 19 (AP)—British grid specialists were unable today to identify a star football player named "Bastin," who the Italians said had been injured in the crash of a British bomber in London.

Clifford Bastin is prominent in British football circles, but his manager, George Allison, said he is in the air raid precautions service in London.

Stefani said that Bastin, who scored for the British football team in the last game played against the Axis, Italy, before the war, was congratulated the fascist runner who downed his plane for "boldness and courage."

The runner, identified as Sergeant Maj. Pouna, received a silver medal for the exploit.

Boxing in Nationals

With two winners of the Chicago Golden Gloves, and runner-up in the same tournament and five Cleveland Golden Gloves winners, the team representing the Northeastern Ohio Ass'n in the National A. A. U. tournament, to be held at Boston Garden on March 31, April 1 and 2, will cut quite a swath in determining the national title holders of 1941.

This group is the first to send in entries.

Most of the district associations are holding their finals this week and more will be known about their entrants at a later date.

22 CHAMPS IN 25 YEARS

Cleveland boxers are always top-ranking performers, as evidenced by their performances in National Tournaments since 1914 when Johnny Downs, now a trainer of the Cleveland team, won the 108 pounds class; Vince Pokorni, the 125 pounds; Dick Stosh, the 135 pounds with M. Wolman the 145 pounds title when the Nationals were staged in Boston's Mechanics Building.

In 28 years Cleveland has had 22 champions, and 13 of them in the last 11 years. They had no winners from 1916 to 1922 inclusive and from 1925 to 1929 inclusive.

LAWYER HERE LAST MONTH

The N. E. Ohio Association team was as follows: Paul Casabetta, 19-year-old Mansfield, O., flyweight, winner of the Cleveland Golden Gloves and runner-up in the Chicago tournament; Harold Smallwood, 18-year-old Akron, O., bantamweight, winner of the 1910 and 1941 Akron and Cleveland Golden Gloves; Sammy Derrico, 21-year-old Golden Gloves champ of Cleveland for this year; Jimmy Tompco, 19-year-old Cleveland lightweight and the Golden Gloves king; George W. Horne, Jr., 19-year-old McKinley high school student from Niles, O., the Youngstown, Cleveland and Chicago Golden Gloves champion of 1941; Johnny Lawer, 19-year-old Cleveland baker, in the 160 pounds class, the boy who made such a hit in winning his class in the inter-city show held at Boston Garden last month; Gus Mullner, 22-year-old Cleveland light heavyweight and the Cleveland Golden Gloves king and Allen Aubrey, 22-year-old, 191-pound Negro from Cleveland, the 1941 Cleveland and Chicago Golden Gloves champion.

The All-Stars' first baseman, also a Washington player, was Pete Greenew, whose name is a member of the San Francisco fire department.

NORMAN HURST is one of England's leading sports writers. His articles are syndicated in newspapers throughout the British Empire. The circulation of these newspapers runs into the millions.

Hurst has made visits to Boston to see English amateur boxers appear in local rings. I last saw him at Miami, Fla., on the occasion of the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott bout. I spent considerable time in Norman's company at that time.

Johnny Buckley has just received a letter from Hurst, passed by a British censor—Examiner 3455—in which the famous English sports writer tells how he is carrying on under bursting bombs in London.

Hurst reveals that despite the war greyhound racing is being conducted as usual in the London area. The letter follows:

"Little did I think when we were laughing and talking over old times in Madison Square Garden a few years ago that everything was being brewed for a war. And, Johnny, don't let anyone kid you. It is just hell.

"You go out in the morning, and you are wondering whether your home will be there when you get back. So is the missus wondering whether you will come home or not.

"In Britain today EVERYONE is in the front line, for those square headed maniacs regard houses, hospitals and schools as military objectives with a big M.

"Still the guy who can't take it on the chin, as well as ladle it out is no good, and whatever else we in this island of ours can or can't do, we can take it. But just like a fight, Johnny, the big question will be 'can the other guy take it?' and the answer will be 'no' and you can say with Ripley, 'Believe It or Not' we—with the help of real Americans—will stop the mad dog of Europe.

Greyhound Racing Gets Going Again

"GREYHOUND RACING is getting going again. It will be as busy as usual.

"The daylight raids we have in the summer have lost their power to worry people, although everyone knows that a bomb may drop from a spot five or six miles up in the sky and blow them to hell.

"The price of the greyhounds has kept up despite the war. It is possible to get a good racing dog for $2500. It is also possible to get racing dogs for $100 to $150.

"The Wadsworth Stadium, one of the biggest greyhound tracks in England, is being operated by Jim Wicks who does not permit bombs or anything else to worry him.

"All the very best."

Two Major Bouts Headed to Boston

BOXING COMMISSIONER Sam Smith's recent statement in which he said that Boston will support boxing in major league style if given top attractions is already getting results. I have learned from authoritative sources that Matchmaker "Rip" Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. is in the bullpen warming up as he prepares to announce April bouts that will feature Lew Jenkins, world's lightweight champion, against George Martin of the South End, and Fritz Zivic, boss of the welterweight division, against Mike Kaplan of Dorchester.

Both bouts will be overweight affairs which will mean that neither Jenkins nor Zivic's titles will be at stake. . . I do not believe this will make any difference with the fans who are more concerned in witnessing stirring bouts than they are in watching championship affairs.

It frequently happens that when a title holder is asked to defend his precious crown outside of New York he wishes to hand pick his opponents. He is eager to make sure he has in front of him a rank third rater.

In overweight matches, such as the Goodwin A. C. plans, champions will assume greater risks. The mere fact the title holder insists that the tussle be fought above the notch for the class is indication of how high he rates his opponent.

George Martin, who will quarrel with Jenkins, is a graduate of the All-America shows. Martin was a member of the first New England All-America team to go to New York for the Eastern finals.

Martin loves to fight. He tosses punches much like Mickey Walker did when the "Toy Bulldog" ruled the middleweight class.

Jenkins came up from Texas to twice knock out Lou Ambers. Jenkins is a terrible puncher, and he is likely to stop anyone he can belt on the chin with his famous right hand.

Mike Kaplan is a Dorchester boy. Mike has made good in a big way in New York and Philadelphia rings. He would have been a cinch to have beaten Henry Armstrong if he had been able to have secured a bout with the Eddie Mead entry before Fritz Zivic.

Kaplan would have an even chance of lifting Zivic's title which is why the Boston bout will be over weight. Fritz Zivic wants to make sure he leaves town as champion even if he happens to drop the decision.

Efforts are also being made to get Joe Louis to come here for a title bout with Tony Shucro, but this bout is still only in the talking stage.

WESTY MEETS MANLAPIG ON ARENA MAT

Pantaleon Manlapig, huge Filipino mat champion, is the underdog for tonight's match with Marvin Westberg, ex-world's champion, in the main event at the Arena.

Manlapig and the former champion will be about even in weight and strength, but Westy has a big advantage in the mauling department. He rates very highly as a bad man, while the tanned husky from the far-away islands wrestles strictly according to the rules.

Manlapig is remarkably fast on his feet for a big fellow, and it is his speed on which he will depend a lot for victory. He specializes in no particular hold, but has better than an average knowledge of them all. He has no set plan of attack against Westberg, but he is confident he will win.

Since his arrival here, Manlapig has set up a notable string of victories. He has yet to lose a bout.

McDonald Named Harvard Soccer Coach

James McDonald, former professional soccer star and coach of the Harvard freshman soccer team since 1934, has been appointed coach of the varsity soccer team, the Harvard A. A., announced today. He succeeds John F. Carr who resigned a few months ago because of the pressure of his law practice. Carr had been head soccer coach since 1929.

Andrew Guayda, a member of the 1936 U. S. Olympic soccer team and later an outstanding professional player for Hub ranks, was promoted from assistant varsity mentor to head freshman coach.

TREATED LIKE A CIRCUS FREAK

DENVER, March 19 (AP)—California's most famous basketball son, soft spoken Angelo (Hank) Luisetti, says "this being treated something like a circus freak is a new sensation to me."

National A. A. U. tournament neighbors have given Luisetti almost as much protection as a movie star. It's impossible to telephone him at his hotel.

Hank did all right when he went into action at the tournament last night, sinking 17 points to the delight of 5,000 fans, and pacing the San Francisco Olympic Club team he captains to an easy 53-28 triumph over St. Louis Nebcos.

The winged "O" team and 15 others moved into today's third round play for the surviving 16 teams, beginning at 1 p. m. Mountain Standard Time.

Today's third round pairings in the National A. A. U. basketball championship:

Hollywood Twentieth Century vs. Salt Lake City Eckers; Los Angeles Lockheeds vs. Oakland, Cal. Athens Club; Shreveport, La. Morris Dicksons vs. Minneapolis Ascension Club; Los Angeles Cliftons vs. Roanoke, Va. Legion Hawks; Kansas City College of Commerce vs. Phillips 66 Oilers, Bartlesville, Okla.:

Stengel Combs Rookies For Earl Averill's Sub

By BILL GRIMES

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 19—After an overnight jump from San Antonio, the Bees arrived here this morning and checked in at the El Jardin Hotel.

They are on a three day trip, during which they'll play the Ft. Worth Panthers in this border town this afternoon, the Toledo Mudhens over at Harlingen tomorrow and the San Antonio Missions at San Benito, Friday.

"During this three game trip," declared Manager Casey Stengel this morning, while we were on our way from the Southern Pacific station to the El Jardin Hotel "I'm going to take a look at the rookies we have with us."

Before the close of the 1940 campaign, I fully appreciated the fact that we need a center fielder. During the winter months, Bob Quinn tried to put across any number of trades, for middle gardeners, who would have made our club, but to no avail.

PERHAPS BETTER AT PLATE

"Earl Averill is still a major leaguer, despite his age. But, I can't make any predictions as to how long he'll be able to go along at top speed. Fortunately for him and also for us, Averill has always led a clean life."

"At the bat, he is as dangerous as he was when he broke into the American League years ago. In fact, I wouldn't doubt but that he is even more dangerous, due to his vast experience."

"From what I've seen of him, I question if baseball has ever produced a more natural hitter. He hits to all fields and he has plenty of power. It's just a question of his legs. He's a trifle stockier than Johnny Cooney in the limbs and therefore is liable to slow down, if I work him too much."

"I'm very anxious to get a real look at Bray. He looks the part of a major league ball player. Bob Coleman has given me his background. And, from what Bob has told me, I can realize that the boy has been playing under a great disadvantage since his second year in organized ball."

LOOKS LIKE COONEY

"I'll admit that I haven't paid too much attention to Bray. Between the weather and our park, I've had so much on my mind that I just haven't been able to get around to him. But, from what I've seen of him, I'll say that Bray is a big league outfielder. He's a real ball hound. He can come in, go back or go to either his right or left and camp under fly balls with the ease and gracefulness of a Johnny Cooney."

"Bray has been knocking around in minor leagues for some time. He's a married man with one child. For years, he wasn't in good physical condition, which was a terrific drawback. That was the reason why the Detroit Tigers cut him loose. He had a batting average of .336 at Evansville last season and a couple of weeks before the Three Eye League wound up, I had Johnny Quinn wire Bob Coleman to send him up to the Bees."

"Realizing that Bray was worn to a frazzle and also that an operation was necessary if the boy was ever going to play in baseball, Coleman sent him to a hospital instead of to Boston."

"Since we've been in camp, I've had a few talks with Bray and he tells me that he feels better than he has in years. And, in between, I also know that Bob Quinn took care of that boy this winter, when things weren't breaking any too well."

PREIBISCH CHANGES STYLE

"In present day baseball speed is a great asset. That's probably why, I've been attracted to Bray. But we're a 25-year-old husky kid in camp by the name of Preibisch, who is worth a look. He stands about six feet and he must weigh close to 200. But he's fast and seems to have plenty of power."

"Until we went down to Monterrey, Preibisch was strictly a pull hitter. He stood so far away from the plate that I questioned if he could protect the outside of the pitchers' target. But since Rude Huelsitt and Jack Onslow have him more closer to the plate he's displayed SLOWED—Only his legs will keep Earl Averill from playing every day for the Bees this year. Casey Stengel claims that the old Cleveland is perhaps better at the plate today than at any time in his glorious career.

"I'll send Sullivan, Early and Barnicle after the Ft. Worth Panthers this afternoon and then I may come back with Salvo and Erickson tomorrow over at Harlingen. I may start Picchola against the Missions at San Benito on Friday, with Lamanna as my first replacement and then Strincevich."

"For the next three games, we're playing minor league clubs, so my boys had better do well, or else."

Amherst to Play 16-game Schedule

AMHERST, March 19 (AP)—The Amherst College baseball team will play a 16-game schedule. It was announced today. It includes home-and-home series with Williams and Wesleyan, the other members of the "Little Three."

up play to beat Mowers from about 15 feet out.

Not content with having scored twice, Cowley then helped Detroit to its only tally of the night. In trying to clear, he laid the plug on Liscombe's stick and Wings left winger backhanded it home at 12:32.

The Wings then went all out for the equalizer and in the final minute didn't even bother to back-check with the result that the Bruins picked up a pair of soft markers.

On a three-man break, Herb Cain scored on assists from Jackson and Hill at 19:05. Shortly after, Jackson broke clean with Hill right behind him. Just before "Stoney" could get clear to shoot, he tangled with Alex Motter enabling Hill to pick up the loose puck with nobody near him. He came in on Mowers, forced the Detroit goalie to commit himself and scored easily—just eight seconds before the game ended.

$40,000 Timepiece To Be Used at Playoffs

A new clock will be unveiled at the Garden tomorrow night for the opening of the playoffs and it will be the finest giant timepiece ever shown at any auditorium, rink or what have you. It is a four sided, two ton masterpiece that will be suspended just over center ice.

All sides will be the same—there will be six faces to a side... one big face to tell the time of periods—four smaller circles for penalties, two for each club, one for minors and one for majors and to top it off there will be another clock telling the time of day... if that isn't enough there's a space for scoring, too... this clock can also be used for fights, track meets and rodeos.

It is the first effort of his kind ever completed and there will be nine more made for various rinks throughout the country... It will cost the makers $40,000 by the time they're completed their experiments and put the jig saw together... the Garden, however, purchased the costly gadget for $23,000.

Last night's windup was one of the dullest games of the year... both outfits fearing injuries tried to take things easy as possible and as a result play was ragged and action spotty... three sweet fights were in the offing, though—Cain vs. Orlando, Schmidt vs. Stewart and Crawford vs. Abel, but outside of a little wrestling nothing happened.

The battle cry: "Where can I get a pair of tickets for either Thursday or Saturday's playoff game?"... the public sale will be negligible... what few, if any, the season ticket holders don't pick up will be put on sale the morning of the game.

Walter Stanowski, the Leafs' defenseman, is quite a humorist... gayly bedecked with a false mustache and dark glasses he did nothing but take bows all last night... the Wings were far from discouraged over the loss... even the fact that they haven't beaten the Bruins this year failed to bother them... several of them insist that they will be back to meet the Bruins in the finals of the cup playoffs next month.

Cowley by slipping home two goals brought his season's total to 17 which added to his record breaking number of 45 assists gave him a total of 62 points for the year... this figure not only gave him the league championship by 18 points but it made him the second highest scorer in N. H. L. history... the only one to ever better that figure was Coach Conney Weiland who amassed 73 points in 1929-30, the year that forward passing was permitted anywhere on the ice.

Hatlo MYERS TELLS GRID PLANS TO B. C. SQUAD

The Boston College football squad has met its new head coach, The Golden Eagles and huge and handsome Dennis Edward "Denny" Myers. It is quite reported, are already fast friends.

The Eagles like the straight-forward, matter-of-fact big guy from Iowa via Providence, R. I. (Brown). "Denny" too, is quite impressed by the enthusiastic Eagles.

"With co-operation from each boy on the squad, a little luck here and there, and a whole lot of hard work I'm sure we can keep Boston College in the position of high standing it now enjoys in intercollegiate football," Myers told 50 odd gridgers who were present at the first meeting.

"I'm hoping that we will have good luck; I know that there have to be co-operation; and I'm positive that there will be lots of hard work" (the latter with a grin) continued "Denny."

OUTLINES PLANS

Myers told his squad that spring practice will start March 31—one week from next Monday. The session will be limited to four weeks—the lads liked that part of the announcement.

The new coach held his youthful grid audience spellbound for 40 minutes with a rapid fire outline of his plans for spring practice, his system and his "demands."

The big man from out of the West already commands the complete respect of this Boston College squad.

Myers announced that he will give every consideration to athletes who desire to compete with the track or baseball squad. "Denny" will handle with Fred Maguire, coach of baseball, and Jack Ryder, dean of American college track coaches "very soon."

The trio hope to work out a plan whereby any member of the grid squad, needed in baseball or track, will be permitted time out from football practice.

NEYLAND KNOWS

Diamond talent on the football squad includes Robert "Bob" Jauron, fullback; Francis "Mopk" Maznicki, high scoring halfback; Harry "Mickey" Connolly, ace passer, and Edward Zablinski, pass snatching end.

Connolly had a bigger and better "rep" in baseball than he had in football when he came to Boston College from Norfolk, Ct., high school. And "Mick" wasn't too hard to take on the gridiron last fall. Tennessee and Major Bob Neyland will vouch for the boy's grid class.

Les Cunningham Leads Minor Loop

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 19 (AP)—Cleveland's snappy Les Cunningham led the pack for the season in American Hockey League scoring with 64 points, a final tabulation issued at headquarters disclosed. He had 22 goals and 42 assists.

Fred Thurrier of Springfield, who led the league scoring many times, was runnerup with 50 points, having added three during the final week.

Cunningham netted only one point during the closing period. Thurrier counted a total of 29 goals and 31 assists, thereby leading in goals scored.

Bush of Providence piled up a total of 113 minutes in the penalty box and second place was held by Myers of New Haven with 86.

Rhode Island Five Tackles Seton Hall

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—The scores of the opening games were high, but the real point-getters of the fourth intercollegiate invitation basketball tournament get into action tonight.

Frank Keane's Rhode Island State team is supposed to be outstanding example of the shoot-and-hope school of basketball and it has achieved considerable fame as a "two-points-a-minute" outfit. Rhode Island's opponent is undefeated Seton Hall, which specializes in sound defense and clever ball-handling but isn't likely to pass up scoring opportunities when the opposing defense is wide open.

The other game tonight sends Long Island University, one of the nation's leading teams, against Westminster, a high-powered small college outfit.

These four teams will have to keep moving, however, to match last night's scoring spree, when Ohio University trounced Duquesne 55 to 40 and City College of New York halloped the University of Virginia 64 to 35 before 15,751 spectators.

Ohio's fast-breaking attack began moving in the second half from a 24-26 disadvantage and produced 21 points in succession. That was too much for the Dukes, who were runners-up to Colorado in last year's tourney. Two tournament records fell as Ohio caged 15 free throws and Carl Ott made good nine of ten tries from the foul line. Ohio's Frank Baumholz was high scorer for the night with 22 points.

City College used a different style, but it was just as effective. The Beavers relied upon fast passing and cutting for the basket, but could cage long shots when necessary. Virginia kept pace for the first half, City leading 29 to 19, but couldn't match the local boys' speed later in the game, especially after Bill Harman and Bill McCann went out of the game on personal fouls.

And Tomorrow's Spring—With 196,000 pounds of fish in the hold, the Forty-Fathom trawler Wave arrives in Boston today covered with ice . . . three feet deep on the deck and pilot's house . . . souvenir of the year's coldest fishing trip. The vessel was in danger of capsizing because of the tons of ice, but the fish in the hold served as ballast keeping the heavy ship on even keel.
